Nutrient Management Proposals Challenge Future Of Farming

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The future of farming in the United States, especially in the Mid-Atlantic states, is being increasingly challenged, but perhaps never so much as it is about to be, according to some public officials, and agronomic and farming experts.

Not only are farmers and agribusiness being challenged to transition to compete toe-to-toe with global competitors, under different standards for production, but now the environmental production standards for United States farmers are to be increased.

According to reports presented Tuesday to the Pennsylvania State Conservation Commission Nutrient Management Advisory Board, it seems that national mandatory nutrient management planning through the oversight of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is inevitable, and that the planning will be based on fertilizer applications meeting crop needs with emphasis on not exceeding phosphorus levels.

In other words, it appears that American agriculture is going to be severely restricted, in many cases, from putting animal manure on soils; especially manures high in phosphorus, and especially on land high in phosphorus.

For Lancaster County, that is more than 80 percent of the land, according to older data used to illustrate the potential impact.

The bottom line is that, if federal regulatory goals and recent soil science findings are upheld, it may be difficult for livestock farmers to find a use for animal manure.

And, if other states adopt what is predicted to be Maryland's probable regulatory restrictions on nutrient applications, then applying animal manure on land may become the job of only the government certified.

The reason for the dour outlook for domestic farming is all tied to the nutrient phosphorus.

And politics.

In Pennsylvania, one of the first states to adopt mandatory nutrient management planning for high density livestock operations, research-based information was used to make nitrogen the nutrient of most concern, because nitrogen is known to be water soluable, fairly easily converted into gaseous form, and high levels in ground water have been linked to health

From a small orchard and a roadside stand, Brown's Orchard Retail Market has expanded to include 173 acres and a wildly successful retail center with bakery, fresh produce, and country gifts. Nona Brown shows off top quality fruit that is at the heart of the family's 50 years in business. Turn to page B4 to read how the Brown family works together in orchard care and marketing. Also the fruit story below that tells of the damage to the trees from the recent cold weather.

MT. AIRY, Md. — Maryland Ayrshire enthusiasts honored some of their own here recently at their annual business meeting. With a turnout of approximately 75, the Maryland Ayrshire Association banquet, held at the Four Seasons restaurant, provided the breeders an opportunity to publicly recognize some of the behind-the-scenes dedication shown by association members.

New officers were elected and directors appointed during the business meeting. Officers of the

FAIRFIELD (Adams Co.) — "On Monday morning, a lot of people are going to spend time riding around on the farms and looking at buds."

Those were the words of orchard manager Dave Benner on Thursday morning last week as growers began the task of assessing the extent of the brutally cold late-season weather mid-week throughout the region.

Benner, of El Vista Orchards in Fairfield, maintains 100 acres of peaches and about 400 acres of apples.

Trouble is, according to many growers and fruit education specialists, it will take some time — even up to a month or so — before the full extent of the damage is known.

A bright side is that growers are aware of the dangers of the cold and have taken steps with the location of their orchards. Other than that, when there is a region-wide freeze such as this, "there's nothing you can do," said Benner.

Bill Kleiner, Penn State regional fruit specialist, noted that this year is similar to 1990, when growers experienced a cold December but in January, "it really warmed up," he said. The significant warmup was enough "to pull trees out of dormancy." Then a cold snap broke, and March warmed up again.

National Letter Writing Campaign Launched To Save Valuable Pesticides

WASHINGTON, D.C. - The American Farm Bureau Federation has joined with the American Crop Protection Association (ACPA) to alert farmers and growers that critical pest control options on most U.S. crops will be lost if the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency continues its rush to judgment in implementing the new Food Quality Protection Act.

The Farm Bureau and ACPA are urging farmers and industry members to go direct to congressional representatives, to the Environmental Protection Association and to the White House about the growing concern. RISE (Responsible Industry for a Sound Environment), the association for the specialty, non-farm pesticide industry, also is urging its members to become involved. Many of the same products for crop pest control are essential to control disease-carrying vermin for consumer health and safety.

Jay J. Vroom, ACPA president, says that EPA's strict adherence to tight time frames for pesticide tolerance reviews is pushing aside fairness and accuracy in favor of expediency and political agendas. If this continues, he says farmers will lose valuable protection from pests on a large number of crops from apples to apricots, cotton to cauliflower, watermelons to zucchini. "Three dependable, economical cotton insecticide uses already have been denied by EPA," he noted.

Leonard Gianessi, consultant to EPA at the National Center for Food and Agriculture Policy, emphasizes the unrealistic FQPA deadlines. "EPA must reassess all U.S. pesticide tolerances — more than 9,000 — in 10 years, but some 3,000 must be done by August of 1999. That's less than 18 months from now — a virtual impossibility," Gianessi says. The methods which EPA uses in the

DELMARVA BROILER/ FRYER MARKET FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was seasonally light to moderate. Seller offerings were fully sufficient for current inquiry. Live supplies were moderate; weights were mixed and irregular. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 51 to 65 cents. Trade sentiment was mostly steady. In the parts complex, breast items, particulary boneless skinless were in generally good balance. Legs, leg quarters and thighs were ample and slow to clear. Wings were adequate to fully adequate.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

ATLANTA, GA
MARCH 11, 1998

Prices were unchanged to higher east of the Rockies, and unchanged on the West Coast. The market tone remained steady to firm. Demand covered the full range and was mostly moderate. Retail specials provided the best cartoned egg movement, and winter storm conditions in the Midwest continued to restrict egg movement where mobility was hampered. Supplies were generally adequate to tight with extra eggs held with confidence. Breaking stock supplies were tight to adequate and heavy nest runs were often sold into more lucrative grading channels; prices were unchanged to higher under a steady to firm trade sentiment.

NORTHEAST BROILER/ FRYER PARTS - PART I

FEDERAL-STATE
ATLANTA, GA.
MARCH 11, 1998

Trucklot buying activity was mixed as traders closely watched for further market developments. Offerings were in better balance on white meat, fully adequate to ample on dark meat. Demand through both retail and distributive channels was expected to improve for the weekend. The market tone was unsettled with dark meat remaining in a weakened position.

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, Mar 11, 1998
USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News

Wheat bids higher for fourth consecutive day; corn and soybeans higher for sixth consecutive day. Wheat 6 to 8 cents higher. Corn 1 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 2 to 4 cents higher. Soybeans 3 to 7 cents higher.

Wheat led the parade in price advances today. Life threatening weather conditions over the majority of the winter wheat country and a shocker in Chicago near the Board of Trade put prices in orbit. With reduced acres seeded last year, any kind of damage could substantially set back new crop production figures. Currently there is a larger than normal amount of wheat in US and World supply channels. However, up-turns at the Board today reflected more upturns in the earlier months.

The winter rally in grain and soybean bids gaining more momentum each day. Wheat kind of catching up with recent sharper gains in corn and soybeans.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MARCH 16-22, 1998

VERNAL EQUINOX, MARCH 20.

VERNAL EQUINOX

What man is there over whose mind a bright spring morning does not exercise a magic influence? Carrying him back to the days of his childish sports, and conjuring up before him the old green field with its gently waving trees, where the birds sang as he has never heard them since . . . where the sky seemed bluer, and the sun shone more brightly, where the air blew more freshly over greener grass and sweeter smelling flowers, where everything wore a richer and more brilliant hue than it is ever dressed up in now!" Charles Dickens (1812-1870) wrote this definition of spring fever. Dandelion greens (full of vitamin C) are the tonic of choice for March 20, we're told.

– Norwegian proverb

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Mount a second toothbrush rack in your bathroom and use the cup hole to store a blow dryer.

SPRING HUMMUS

1 can (16 ounces) chickpeas
2 tablespoons olive oil
1/4 cup tahini
1/4 cup lemon juice
4 cloves garlic, minced
1/3 cup chopped parsley
3 tablespoons chopped fresh mint
salt and pepper, to taste

Rinse chickpeas and mash or puree them. Slowly add olive oil and tahini, blending until smooth. Add lemon juice, herbs, and seasonings, and mix well. Serve on pita triangles or crackers.

Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Is't on Joseph's day (March 19) clear, so follows a fertile year.

St. Benedict (March 21) sow thy pease, or keep them in thy rick.

March dust on apple leaf brings all kinds of fruit to grief.

March sun lets snow stand on stone.

Paradise Tobacco
Attention Tobacco Farmers:
If you do wish to process your tobacco, make sure you know what your charges are for delivery, threshing and commission costs.
Make sure you also know that your out-of-state man has a good reputation. If you are satisfied with that, then process your tobacco, but remember you possibly would be better off if you took special care of your tobacco in your barn. That way you can't blame anybody else for your judgment!
My recommendation is not to plant another crop until your crop is sold.

A Salute To 4-H

Begining Sunday, March 15, the 4-H program across the nation and in each one of the states is honored for the work done for the youth of America. From the heart of the city (the largest 4-H chapter in Pennsylvania is in center city Philadelphia) to the most rural of communities, 4-H Awareness Week celebrates the leadership of 4-H youth.

Each year "4-H week" celebrates the opportunities in the programs by calling attention to the diversity of the lives and backgrounds of 4-H youth. This year the theme, "4-H...Are You Into It?" is appropriate. Young people between the ages of 8 and 19 learn to develop leadership, citizenship, interpersonal, and workforce skills in a wide variety of 4-H programs. The subjects fall within four major academic disciplines: biological sciences, social sciences, arts and humanities, and physical sciences. For example, in Chester County, over 4,700 young people completed 6,300 projects this past year. Multiply these numbers by the large number of counties in the nation and you get a little idea of the impact of the program on those who participate.

In addition, dedicated, volunteer leaders give their time and their talents to teach and to encourage young people and their caregivers. We can never say enough good things about the 4-H program and the extension service personnel that run the programs.

To everyone in the 4-H program we say, "You are doing good work that is obvious to many of us in the community, especially to those who have been helped by the program when we were teenagers. The hands-on experience is invaluable. Keep up the good work!"

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor,

I appreciated the excellent editorial Opinion — "Enhance Soil Ability," in last week's edition. Lancaster County loses an estimated 12 tons of topsoil per year from every acre of crop land and organic matter levels are at best being maintained instead of increasing. Long term soil health and productivity hinges on how we manage organic matter and the "animals" who live in it. (Last week's lead article in "Corn Talk" is a great example.) I believe the biggest challenge to adopting a no-till system is lack of information and experience. We have used steel in the last 150 years in order to prepare the soil for a crop and have gotten pretty good at it. But now these fields are "addicted" to tillage and require frequent operations in order to break up the compacted soil. Organic matter is burned up during tillage and soil microbes are hindered from multiplying to their full potential. A properly managed no-till will become more tilthy and mellow over time a nature is allowed to do its work. Earthworms proliferate and soil aggregate stability increases which leads to better water infiltration and moisture holding capacity. Success in no-till is all in "art and technique." We have the equipment available now to handle high residue levels and collectively have enough information to make this a profitable, environmentally friendly, and productive system to use.

We owe it to future generations to make the soil better than when we found it!

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Increase Cow Longevity

Are you breeding good genetics into your herd but preventing cows from attaining their genetic potential? This is a question Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent asks. Cows are a big investment and the life blood of your dairy farm business. Are you protecting your investment in cows so they have a long and productive life and an opportunity to generate a good return on your investment?

The road to a long and profitable life for cows begins with the mating of good cows with good bulls. This must be followed with good management from day of birth to the date of first calving and beyond.

The challenge is to protect cattle from the things that may scar them for life. They are the things that seriously impair their health, production, conception and longevity. These things put a cap on the cows potential to be profitable.

To Control Diseases

Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us it is important to control things that scar cattle for life and reduce their longevity in the herd. High producing cows need healthy lungs. Respiratory problems, such as pneumonia and lung worms, may cause permanent scarring of the lungs.

These are the cows that pant the most, go off feed and drop in milk production when pushed hard or when exposed to stresses such as heat. Coccidia, intestinal worms and Johne's bacteria may cause permanent damage to the digestive tract. Affected cattle utilize feeds less efficiently and are unable to absorb the nutrients they need to support good milk production and good conception.

Several contagious diseases, such as BVD and lysto, may cause serious reproductive problems. Failure to prevent and control udder infections allows mastitis organisms to do permanent damage to the udder's secretory tissue.

To Feed Cattle Properly

Poor feeding practices may cause acidosis. This results in laminitis and permanent damage to the feet or cause severe stomach ulcers and liver abscesses. Under feeding of young stock may severely stunt their growth for life, reminds Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent.

On the other hand, getting young calves to fat may trigger excessive fat deposits in the developing udder at the expense of milk secreting cells. This will jeopardize future milk production potential. Thus, it is very important to be constantly monitoring your feeding program and observing your cattle weekly for best performance.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON EATING WITH TAX COLLECTORS

March 15, 1998

Background Scripture:
Mark 2;1 through 3:6
Devotional Reading:
Acts 2:22-36

One of the things that really alienated Jesus from the religious authorities of his day was the company he kept. In fact, Jesus probably would not have ended up on a cross if he just cultivated the "right" people.

But he had that infuriating habit of associating with the worst sort of people: lepers, sick people, foreigners, sinners and (ugh!) tax collectors. (Lepers, foreigners and sinners for obvious reasons, but sick people because it was assumed they were sick because of sin and tax collectors, because they worked for the enemy, Rome!)

So, in Mark 2 when Jesus says to the paralytic whose friends have lowered his pallet through the roof of the house where Jesus was staying, "My son your sins are forgiven" (2:5), they are irate. I suspect they were angry because Jesus released this man from the paralysis of both his body and his spirit. They weren't ready to have this man healed. So, instead of giving thanks and praise to God that this man had been made whole, they turned to theology and grumbled instead: "It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?"

AN ACCUSATION

Jesus' "error" might have been overlooked if he had just made that one faux-pas, but, as Mark makes abundantly clear, Jesus kept on doing it again and again. Next Mark tells us that Jesus and his disciples are sitting at table with "many tax collectors and sinners." When the scribes of the Pharisees saw that, they challenged the disciples, "Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?" (2:16). Obviously it wasn't so much a question as an accusation.

The scribes were caught up in one of those infernal "good guy/bad guy" systems of classifications. The essence of this kind of classification is the division of people into groups with labels, so that they are dismissed or condemned, not as individuals, but as "kinds" of people. Tax collectors were definitely bad. Everybody with that vocation could be condemned and shunned without a moment's hesitation. Sinners, of course, were also bad and could be treated accordingly.

I read in the newspaper the other day that there is a lot of conflict in parts of India today where the "untouchables" are beginning to revolt against the caste system that denies them recognition as human beings. They are rejected by the upper castes, not on the basis of who they are personally, but as members of the "untouchable" caste, a caste to which other people have assigned them.

OUR CASTE SYSTEM

Our caste system operates on a considerably higher level, but we have it all the same. We use labels to characterize unfavorably people whom we do not know. Some of these insidious labels scarcely need mentioning; we are all aware of the existence of racial, ethnic and religious prejudices. But one which we may overlook is, in my mind, the most destructive of all: ideology.

Increasingly, many people are more concerned with what ideological camp you're in than what kind of person you are. To some, if you are tabbed a "liberal" or a "conservative," that, depending upon the one who is doing the labeling, is the worst thing that can be said about you and you are written off as "undesirable." People do the same thing with "Democrat" and "Republican," "fundamentalist" and "modernist," "anti-abortion" and "Pro-life." Challenged as to why he ate with "tax collectors and sinners," Jesus replied, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I came not to call the righteous, but sinners" (2:17). All of us are sinners.

Three more times in Mark 2:18 through 3:6 they challenge him: on why his disciples are non-fasters while the Baptist's practiced fasting, and whether he violated the sabbath by plucking and eating grain and healing a man with a withered hand.

Jesus' response is instructive; "And he looked around at them with anger, grieved at their hardness of heart . . ." (3:5). Their labels truly grieved and angered him. How do you think he reacts to ours?

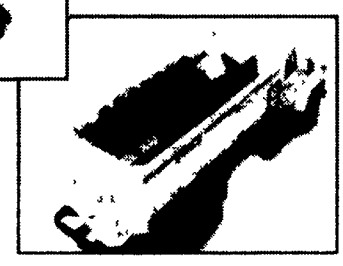
TIP THE SCALES WITH HEAVYWEIGHT MIXERS THAT ARE SOFT ON FEED

Pound for pound, you won't find a more powerful or gentle mixer than the Series IV by Roto-Mix®. Its extra heft easily blends batch after batch of feed, while its patented rotor design and tumbling action mix all ingredients without damage. Plus, a special hay pan keeps chunks of hay out of the chamber until they're cut by the auger knives. Transmission, PTO and drive line loads are reduced so the Series IV needs less horsepower and maintenance.

The Series IV is available in trailer, truck and stationary units with mixing capacities from 80 to 520 cu. ft.



ROTO-MIX

A Division of J-STAR Industries, Inc.

For larger operations, there's the super heavyweight Roto-Mix Commercial line with mixing capacities from 420 to 900 cu. ft. Call today and arrange for a demo. You'll see Roto-Mix really tips the scales in your favor.

SUPERFLOW FERTILIZER SPREADERS

Vicon SUPERFLOW SEEDER

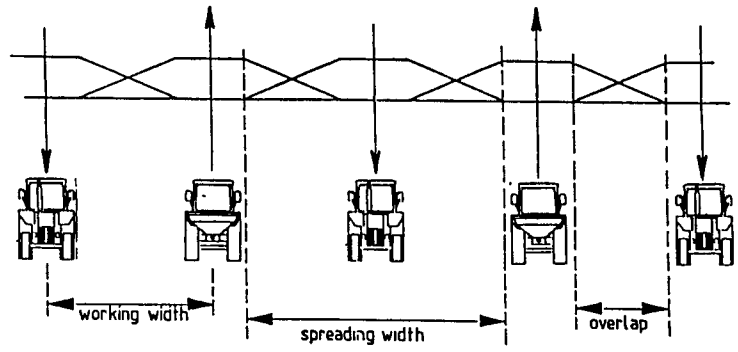
Spreaders are the most accurate broadcast spreaders in the world. The unique pendulum action keeps the spread pattern close to the rear of the machine while at the same time providing a symmetrical pattern on both sides.

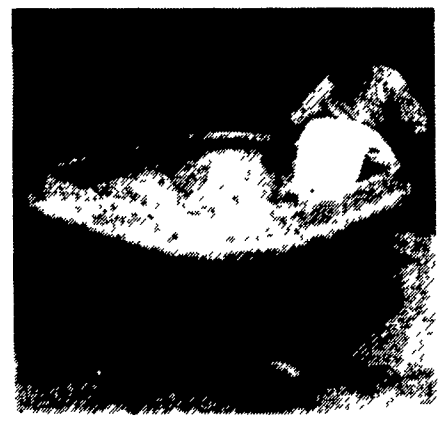


The pattern allows "back and forth" as well as "around and around" operation. The "truncated" pattern offsets inaccurate overlap problems, eliminating streaking.

Vicon

Seeder spreaders are easily calibrated for extremely accurate performance.

Rust free polyester hoppers, "DURA-COAT" enamel on painted components with stainless steel metering plates, precision adjustments, and a variety of spouts for a multitude of applications have earned Vicon Superflow seeder spreaders a world-wide reputation as the premier broadcast spreader.



Versatile Vicon spreaders band material in vineyards, orchards and nurseries, as well as spread lime, and salt and sand for winter use.

Nutrient Management Proposals Challenge Future of Farming

problems, especially with fetuses and newborns.

Traditional and long standing doctrine has held that phosphorus, while water soluable in some forms, mainly occurs in a relatively stable form and doesn't move easily from the soil.

Because of the physics of its chemistry, soil phosphorus has been largely considered to be attracted to soils particles, such as clay.

Like iron to a magnet, phosphorus has been thought to stick pretty close to the soil particles to which it attatches.

After a soil is saturated with phosphorus, any additional phosphorus is then free to form other compounds, some water soluable.

Sandy soils, naturally low in the electromagnetically charged clay particles that serve as a binder of phosphorus, reach saturation faster and can not handle as much phosphorus loading.

While those considerations weren't challenged by new information presented Tuesday to the advisory board, the new information was that erosion and sedimentation controls apparently don't have much effect on preventing the flow of phosphorus from crop fields, especially those that use conservation tillage practices.

Apparently, the biological community — soil microbes feeding on organic materials — that develops in the top layer of soils, especially in farm field where conservation tillage is practiced, such as no-till, readily converts phosphorus into an aqueous form.

Not only is that beneficial for growing plants, because they need phosphorus in the aqueous form, but that creates a steady flow of phosphorus in surface storm water runoff of those fields.

The information presented by Dr. Doug Beegle, Penn State University agronomist and advisor to the SCS NMAB, represents a complete turnaround on what had been considered scientific fact and a foundation of nutrient management.

However, phosphorus is not linked directly to human health concerns.

The EPA's concern with phosphorus, and Maryland's concern are tied into high soil tests and water tests, and several events over the past year — fish kills and lesions, and some apparently related human health problems were scientifically linked to the aquatic dinoflagillate, "pfiesteria piscacada."

The normally non-dangerous pfiesteria organism has been unscientifically linked to phosphorus pollution, but, because of nearby high density animal agricultural operations and high phosphorus findings, some consider the coincidental link to be evidence enough.

From information presented to the NMAB during its scheduled meeting in the state Department of Agriculture Building in Harrisburg, it was made clear that if federal initiatives to control livestock manure applications on land — based on plant needs of phosphorus, the phosphorus content of the manure, and the existing soil levels of the nutrient — were to be adopted, it would have the effect of raising the cost of farming beyond competitive levels, especially in world trade, where environmental restrictions on production (as well as government-mandated labor costs) are far from equal.

Theoretically, a change from nitrogen-based nutrient management to phosphorus-based nutrient management on farms with high levels of residual soil phosphorus would mean discovering some other means of disposing of animal manures instead of applying it to cropland.

Additionally, if phosphorus-based management were mandated, it would mean purchasing commercial nitrogen fertilizer and applying that to meet crop requirements (but no more).

That could easily means devastating additional costs of production.

It was discussed that feeding techniques recently initiated in the Mid West, such as to use phytase in poultry feeds, could be used to lower the amount of phosphorus in manure.

Also mentioned was the possibility of using some phosphorus-binding chemicals (such as iron sulfate) to effectively form biologically inert phosphorus compounds.

The switch to emphasizing phosphorus as the nutrient of equal or most concern has been sudden and unexpected, but recent soil research findings apparently support the switch in emphasis, according to Beegle, who said he was as surprised as anyone with the findings of the research.

The public health threat may well be completely unfounded.

There is no clear link between phosphorus and the health concern presented by the pfiesteria organism, but that hasn't stopped Maryland Gov. Parris Glendening from proposing legislation that could well drive the integrated poultry industry off of the Maryland Eastern Shore.

Glendening is up for relection, as is the entire slate of Maryland public officials. Maryland elects all of its state government at the same time, not staggered as in Pennsylvania.

Ironically, according to a Tuesday Wall Street Journal article, Glendening is considered to be at risk of losing because of poor voter perceptions and some early trouble over campaign funds.

According to Tom Simpson, an agronomist who holds a joint appointment with the University of Maryland and the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the aquatic organism was scientifically linked to human health problems (short term memory losses, a nuerological disorder), and was cited as the cause for a fish kill of juvenile menhadden fishes in the Maryland Pocomoke River estuary in August, and some fish kills in the Carolinas.

However, Simpson said that the fish kill coincided with the annual migration of the juvenile fish from the rivers into the estuaries, part of their life cycle.

He said that prior to the fishes' downstream migration, that the pfisteria organism were in the water feeding on algae.

Rather than phosphorus being the cause for the pfisteria switching from algae to fish flesh, Simpson said there is at least an equal possibility that the large schools of fish passing through the clouds of pfisteria stimulated the organism to change feeding strategies.

Perhaps some chemical in the waste of the fish triggers the response, he theorized.

However, a group of people tasked with investigating the situation did not have time in the few months last year to learn the truth about the pfisteria mystery.

In the meantime, front page newspaper stories about "pfisteria hysteria" are blamed for helping to create a $400 million loss in seafood sales for the Maryland Eastern Shore. He said tourism losses couldn't be estimated.

The event was basically a food scare, perpetuated by out-of-perspective reporting, and a lack of scientific effort to determine the cause.

Glendening has proposed a budget that includes allocations to help pay for hiring additional people to inspect farms, and to help pay for trucking manure out of the region.

According to statements of experts presenting information to the board, in some cases it could require as much time as the passing of a family generation or more on a farm before the amount of phosphorus would be reduced to allow a return to spreading manure.

The volunteer NMAB was created by Pennsylvania law to develop and recommend program design and regulations to carry out the state Nutrient Management Act, also known as Act 6.

It has largely met those initial responsibilities, but continues to meet to review program developments and address new issues related to nutrient management, as the program gets underway in its first full year of program operation.

The first official state nutrient management plan was approved late last year in Lancaster County.

Pennsylvania law makes planning and implementation of best management practices (BMPs) mandatory for those animal agriculture operations which exceed a set threshold for the number of livestock per acre available for crop or pasture production, including rented and owned land.

Pennsylvania law mandates nutrient management planning when livestock animal weights exceed 2,000 pounds per acre.

The EPA recommendations announced recently, are to require nutrient management plans nationally, based on a different calculation of stocking rate per acre.

The NMAB's meeting agenda included an update from a representative of the state Department of Environmental Protection on what the agency has been doing to work with EPA mandates for nutrient management.

The EPA had recently promulagated national nutrient management regulations in an effort to control the nutrient pollution problems associated with, for example, hog farms in North Carolina, poultry operations in the Mid West, and (closer to Washington, D.C.) the concentrated poultry industry on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

The EPA nutrient regulations require management plans and federal permits of farms considered Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs), as compared to Pennsylvania's Concentrated Animal Operations (CAOs).

It was known by DEP officials that the EPA was concerned with the nutrient phosphorus, but it was not known how much concern was attached to the nutrient.

Technically, Act 6 allows for further investigation and recommendations from DEP on the potential for trouble from the other two of the big three nutrients — nitrogen (N), phosphorus (P), and potassium (K).

(Every bag of fertilizer contains a listing of the percentages of N, P and K, in that order. For example, a 15-10-10 fertilizer would be 15 percent N-10 percent P, and 10 percent K.)

Plants require all three in adequate amounts to be healthy and high yielding. Soil tests can be used to guage how much of each nutrient should be applied to the soil to supply a plant with 100 percent of its needs.

It is also known that these nutrients can exist in the soils in various forms and in different molecular

Dairy Of Distinction Program Again Seeks Nice Looking Farms

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co ) - Do you take pride in maintaining your dairy farm? Does your dairy farm project an attractive, wholesome image to consumers? If so, the Dairy of Distinction Program of Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey, will consider your farm for the program's annual recognition awards.

The Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program that oversees the Distinction program was first started in 1983 in Pennsylvania to recognize the hard work and dedication of the farmers who maintain attractive farms The purpose of the program is to instill a greater sense of confidence in the wholesomeness of dairy products, and increase their sales.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds, and surroundings, since this is what our dairy product consumers observe as they drive by the farm.

The cleanliness of the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management are all areas taken into consideration when a team of judges takes a look at your farm from a roadside point of view. Judging is conducted during the month of May. Award winners are announced during your local June Dairy Month activities.

To qualify for consideration, you must be actively dairy farming and shipping milk.

Applications are available for Pennsylvania dairy farms from Michael O'Conner, 324 Henning Building, Dept. of Dairy and Animal Science, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802. Phone: (814) 863-3913.

For New York State applications are available from Carol Keene, RD 1, Box 31, Gilbertsville, NY 13776. Phone: (607) 783-2169.

For New Jersey applications, send to: August Knispel, 641 Sidney Road, Pittstown, NJ 08867. Phone: (908) 735-4989.

All applications must be completed and returned to your state secretary by Wednesday, April 15, 1998.

Cold Weather Damages Fruit

In 1990, peaches bloomed early — on April 8, in Kleiner's recollection — "the earliest I've seen peaches bloom," he said.

However, even though growers "kissed the apricots goodbye" that year, Kleiner said, "some growers had a decent year for the peach crop."

Kleiner sees the same this year. Apricots will be a complete loss, in addition to many plum orchards. But for peaches, the speculation is that Pennsylvania may have some crop, though reports on the nature of the crop won't be available until next week. And so far, the apple orchards, normally better at withstanding temperature drops, still look OK.

Depending on geographical location, this week's dangerously cold overnight temperatures will have effected crops differently.

The apricots are past bloom stage and will be "done in" by the cold, according to Tom Becker, York horticulture agent.

Almost traditionally, peaches can also be hard hit by the cold. When the temperature falls below 23 degrees, about 90 percent of the crop can be killed, according to Becker.

But when the temperature plummets to the teens, as it did this week, widespread devastation can potentially result.

Benner of El Vista Orchards noted that, Wednesday night, the temperature dropped to 16 degrees. One grower told him that, nearby, the temperature fell to 11 degrees, in a valley.

What had Benner worried was that, Wednesday evening, at 10 p.m., the thermometer read 19 degrees — already too cold for peaches, depending on their state of bloom.

As for apple crops, depending on location, the some of the crop could be adversely affected, though many varieties are cold resistant.

Fruit growers are staying quiet, noted Becker, York horticulture agent. Many have assumed a "wait and see" attitude about the effects of the brutal cold on the crops.

Becker doesn't remember seeing a year like this in his career as a horticulturalist. Becker has never seen temperatures that descended "this low, this late," he noted.

For flower enthusiasts, many of the blooming daffodils were also destroyed by the cold because of stalk and flower freezes.

Covering them simply is not enough. Many growers added a mulch layer, at least, to protect the bulbs from freeze damage.

But for outside garden areas, many areas have experienced a complete loss, especially in the southeastern part of the state, which in many cases is "three to four weeks ahead of schedule or more," noted Becker.

Many growers won't know the full extent of the damage until end of April and early May, according to Kleiner, regional fruit specialist.

In any cold spell, the buds further out on the branches can be hardest hit, as well as the weaker buds. Buds closer to the tree have a higher survivability.

Kleiner noted that, because of the heaviness of cold air, growers know to locate fruit trees on ridges. Orchard location is key. Trees in basins can fall prey to severe cold. However, the cold was widespread throughout the region with high winds, in many cases, which could have a large-scale impact on crops, according to growers.

Lately, there have been a lot more frosts that concern the fruit specialists. Where frosts and freezes were noted severe every 1 year in 10, growers have had three years in the past five to warrant concern, according to Kleiner.

In the case of the Adams County orchardist, speed of discoloration is relative to the heat of the day. In other words, the cold damage to the buds of peaches won't be evident until a few days of warmer temperatures pass by.

And with temperatures dropping below 25 for several days, growers can do nothing to stop the damage to the crop.

"I can make no business decision on how good or how bad it affected me until the weekend," said Benner. Benner warned that any grower who "cries wolf and claims they are wiped out" is not being honest. They need to take time on warmer days to look at the actual damage.

The only thing growers can do is "sit there and pray," Kleiner, regional fruit specialist, said.

Fruit growers in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina, and North Carolina — where the peach fruit was in bloom — were devastated by the killing cold, according to media reports. What effects this will have on peach supplies for the Mid-Atlantic are hard to determine.

As for the mild winter in Pennsylvania, many suspected that a cold-down was inevitable.

Said York horticulture agent Tom Becker, "We knew it would have to catch up to us sometime."

National Letter Writing Campaign Launched To Save Valuable Pesticides

reassessment process are critical, Vroom points out, because they can result in restriction or cancellation of the use of a specific pesticide on certain crops.

Organophosphates, First To Be Evaluated — Carbamates Next

EPA says it will first reassess organophosphates (OPs), valued insecticides used to control an extensive array of crop pests. This widely used crop protection class includes chlorpyrifos (Dursban), azinphos methyl (Guthion), disulfoton (Disyston), malathion, parathion, diazinon, and acephate (Orthene). The OPs are used on some 64 million acres of the nation's farmland and have been the main line of defense against crop loss to insects for 40 years, Vroom says.

A second widely used class of insecticides, carbamates, is soon to follow on EPA's reassessment list. This group, used to protect a range of crops from apples and cotton to peanuts, potatoes and soybeans, includes such products as Temik, Sevin, Furadan, Carzol, Lannate, Vydate and Larvin.

Rush To Judgment

Vroom notes that industry and agriculture accepted FQPA when passed hurriedly in late 1996. "We supported many of its provisions," he says, "because the act's fundamentals are ones to which my industry has long subscribed — human health and safety, extra margins of safety for children. Its requirements are strict, but achievable, if EPA — rather than a rush to judgment on many of the essential pesticides growers need for profitable farming — takes time to allow development of needed scientific data and methods to meet FQPA requirements. "Then," Vroom adds, "regulatory decisions can be based on well-conceived, uniform and practical policies rather than highly exaggerated estimates. Right now, that is not being done."

Instead, the agency appears to be setting pesticide tolerances (the amount of a pesticide's residue allowed on or in a harvested crop) based on theoretical estimates, or defaults, in cases where data based on actual use is not yet available. EPA's rationale is that it must meet the short deadlines imposed by FQPA, Vroom says. But, congressional mandates under FQPA can be met without undue risk to farm and consumer use. Farmer and grower pest control products need not be placed in jeopardy.

Farmers Urged To Act Now

A concerned, vocal agriculture is essential to preserve needed crop protection products within farmers' arsenals. Vroom urges farmers: "Contact your commodity organization about your concern, then your member of Congress, EPA and The White House. Tell them to help save the pesticides you need to protect your crop and your farm income. Insist that science, not politics, be followed in implementing the Food Quality Protection Act.

Vroom concludes, "When the law is carried out the way Congress intended, the consumer wins, the farmer wins and America's agricultural productivity is not placed in jeopardy."

National Farmers Union Annual Meeting

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The independent farmer's ability to make management decisions on the commodities they produce is disappearing as markets have become more concentrated, according to an internationally syndicated investigative reporter.

Alan Guebert of Delavan, Ill., told participants in the National Farmers Union's 96th Anniversary Convention that the nation's feedlots, packers, chemical companies, seed companies and railroads have merged and bought each other in recent years, denying market access to farmers and reducing their profits.

In the six largest cattle feeding states, for example, a third of the cattle are produced under formal contracts. In 1997, the ratio was one-in-five. While vertically integrated pork packers offer attractive premiums to their contract producers during low-price cycles, producers' receipts remain fixed when prices are higher. "When you flatten your risk, you flatten your profitability," Guebert said.

In grain and oilseeds, Guebert said, Archer Daniels Midland has emerged from a barely profitable company in the 1970s to one of the largest global market corporations today. ADM currently owns 2,200 barges and 15,000 rail cars. It is the world's largest cocoa processor and has purchased a portion of United Feed Growers of Canada, Moorman's Feeds, 10 percent of Iowa Beef Processors and 30 percent of Minnesota Corn Processors. Elsewhere. DuPont has spent $3 billion to purchase part of Pioneer Seeds; Continental Grain has purchased a portion of Premium Standard Farms (PSF); and Smithfield is establishing pork-slaughtering plants in Mexico.

In transportation, Canadian National, Canada's largest east-west railroad, recently purchased purchased Illinois Central, the largest north-south railroad unto the U.S. and owners of the fourth-largest railroad in Mexico. Guebert said all of these mergers and acquisitions tie together as these transnational corporations are positioning themselves to move commodities from country to country, taking advantage of differences in currency exchange rates, labor and environmental standards and other factors.

Guebert said biotechnology primarily benefited farmers in its first three or four years, through products such as insect and herbicide-resistant seeds. Now, these products are produced for the benefit of end-users, which will force farmers into planting what the end-users want. In livestock, technology has enabled the production of calves from a single cell. This patented technology will mean that producers who produce calves from these animals must pay a fee, because the calves belong to the genetics company.

A new federal farm policy and global trade are fostering an environment in which the business decision-making is taken away from farmers. Guebert said $1.2 billion was spent last year on lobbying, while over the last 10 years, farm policy has been passed that builds market concentration and denies market access.

"There's one word to describe America: freedom. When laws are broken or distorted, we lose our freedom and our souls. That's what's happening in this country," he said.

Effort Underway To Revitalize State Direct Marketing Group

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A number of Pennsylvania producer-retail marketers are in the process of revitalizing an idled, statewide direct-marketing association and are making an offer difficult to pass up — join for a year at no cost, and then decide if it isn't worth paying dues to continue as a member.

That was one of the actions approved during an organizational meeting held at the Pennsylvania/Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference and Trade Show, at the Willow Valley Resort and Conference Center, Feb. 17-20.

During the meeting, a new bylaw was adopted and temporary leadership installed.

The name is to remain the same — the Pennsylvania Retail Farm Market Association Inc. (PRFMA), an incorporated, nonprofit association.

The core group, comprised mostly of those active in planning and supporting the annual multistate Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference, has been working since last year with John Berry, a multi-county Penn State Extension marketing agent in southeastern Pennsylvania, and with the support of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Berry was named the acting executive secretary of PRFMA.

There are two positions left open on the board of directors — the group is looking for one person from the western region, and one from the northern region of the state.

Anyone interested in serving as a director should call Berry at (610) 391-9840. The board has scheduled another meeting for noon, March 23, in Room 309 of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Building in Harrisburg.

It's no surprise that the association is receiving a jump-start effort by those already heavily involved in the business.

Direct marketing represents a segment of the agricultural business community that has been growing in recent years, primarily by branching out and away from the typical roadside stand at the end of the farm lane.

The marketing environment has changed for all agricultural products.

National, continental and global agricultural mass marketing competition has pressured farm-gate prices below cost of production in many instances, forcing out those unwilling to adopt new high production, low-return, management-intensive techniques, assume additional debt, or get involved in contracts.

There is little room in most of the traditional bulk-commodity production agricultural industry to successfully start-up an independent operation that focuses on generating income through traditional, mainstream raw-product sales.

Among all commodities, there are fewer, if any, opportunities to break into mass marketing today.

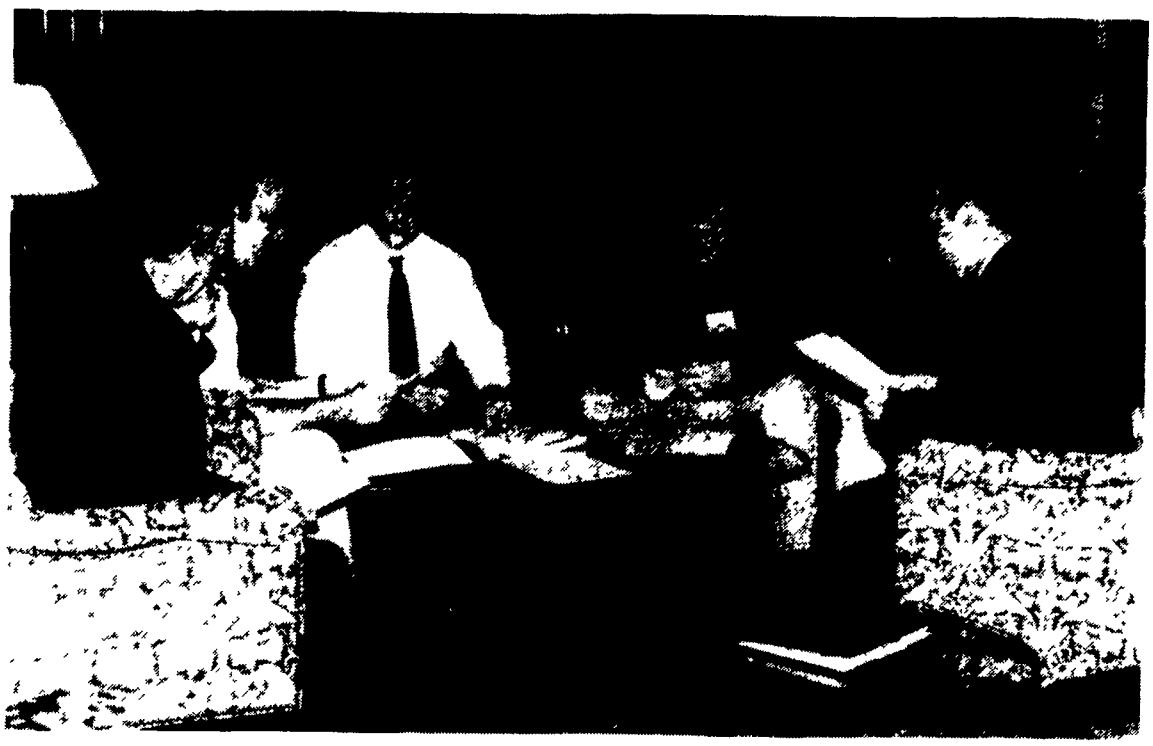
But, the alternative to mass marketing — niche, or direct marketing — has allowed many to earn enough to pay expenses and generate a decent standard of living.

Orchard operators who hold festivals, or extend some type of intimacy or special experience to customers, along with offering high quality products, are among those finding success.

Some are working directly with urban sprawl neighbors to grow produce for them — fresh, same-day picked vegetables and fruits.

Those producing vegetables and fruits, or meat and dairy products, through organic farming practices have found some measures of success as an alternative to mainstream production.

In fact, the organic industry is growing to the point that some companies have formed, as well as smaller cooperatives, to move beyond direct retail to mass marketing.



Pennsylvania representatives on the Mid-Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference Planning Committee review bylaw proposals and other materials prior to presenting them for consideration in the revitalization of the Pennsylvania Retail Farm Market Association Inc. (PRFMA). From the left is Warren Mathias with the state Department of Agriculture Bureau of Market Development; John Berry, PSU Extension multi-county market agent and acting executive secretary of PRFMA; Robert Ferber, president of PRFMA; David Hodge, treasurer; and William Lelik, an agricultural marketing specialist with the PDA Bureau of Market Development, serving as an informal advisor.

Others produce quality product for direct sales to certain chefs and specialty restaurants, willing to pay a premium for top, dependable quality.

Some vineyard owners have discovered that, in addition to marketing their wines and grapes, the aesthetics of their farms can be used to set the stage for providing some type of unique experience for customers.

The variety of offerings is as different as the people who own and run the farm enterprises, and the customers they serve.

For the individual with some farming experience and assets who can learn quickly to grow a variety of specialty crops well, the opportunity has been shown to exist to earn a living through small-scale farming, especially in Pennsylvania and the other Mid-Atlantic states.

That's what a growing number of farmer-entrepreneurs have discovered — ways to be full-service, small businessmen in agriculture and generate per-acre profits to the point of successfully

ENB has been a part of Ephrata since 1881. This building at 110 East Main Street was the Bank's home from 1884 until 1925.

My calendar has 365 days

The Ephrata National Bank has been providing loans and other banking services to farmers since 1881. Many of the philosophies that helped ENB enjoy more than a century of growth are as important today as they ever were.

Take the way we calculate interest on loans. The traditional way to calculate interest on a loan is to use the number of days in a year, which on my calendar is 365. Many, if not most, lenders use a 360-day year.

What does that mean to you? Well, on a $100,000 loan at 81/2% (the current prime rate), your interest bill at ENB would be $8,500. If you paid interest on the basis of a 360-day year, your loan would cost you $8,618, or an annual difference of $118.

If you prefer the traditional way we calculate interest, give me a call. We've got lots to talk about.

competing against higher-profit land uses, such as siting residential and commercial buildings.

As with most other small businesses, there are almost always some obstacles to creating and keeping a smoothly operating business.

Those who are attempting to rebuild PRFMA said they believe the organization can help overcome those obstacles, through education or influencing official policy.

Local and state regulations can be created that unfairly and unecessarily restrict business by requiring meaningless paperwork, effort, or profit-taking fees.

Furthermore, many sense that it can be counted upon today, in almost every business, that there will be opposition to conducting business.

Opposition can come from local and/or broader-scale anti-industry and anti-competitive forces, or it can come through unmonitored actions by public officials working with an insufficient understanding of the impact of their suggested actions and policies.

A number of legal and statutory threats to small businesses can come from policies adopted without consideration of those small businesses. In some cases, the small businesses being affected are not represented, much less considered, when policies are being developed.

Developing and adopting policies is politics, and to influence the outcome, requires political clout.

Clout can only come through good communications, a respected reputation as an industry representative group, and a message that solves problems, instead of exacerbating them.

That is what the people working to re-establish the PRFMA organization want to develop — a mutually supportive organization that can provide a conduit to a spectrum of useful educational materials and programs, timely warnings of upcoming regulations and policy changes, development of a networking system, and respected political recognition.

According to Berry, "(The PRFMA) has not been active for a few years. Now a new group of farmers, men and women, can see some value from a state organization.

"It's main goals are marketing education and, in addition to fellowship, to provide a unified voice for direct markets."

Berry started last year as the multi-county, agri-marketing agent for Berks, Bucks, Lehigh, Montgomery and Northampton counties.

He said that the southeastern region of the state has been growing, and has become much more conducive to direct marketing.

"The urban sprawl has been putting pressure on farmland to make farmland more profitable, so if people can develop direct marketing techniques they can profit on, we would be turning a negative into a positive."

Berry got involved with the PRFMA effort through Larry Yager, a marketing agent in Adams County.

Yager had been previously involved with the organization when it was active, and he co-chaired and coordinated the 1998 Pennsylvania/Mid-Atlantic conference, along with representatives of existing direct marketing associations, agriculture departments, and extension services in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, and Virginia.

The Pennsylvania contingent on the conference planning committee included a number of farm marketers who had been interested in restarting a statewide association.

Yager said that at last year's conference, he recommended that Pennsylvania growers appoint a steering committee to look into restarting the association. Yager had to be away for a number of weeks and called upon Berry to aid the group.

In that way, Berry was introduced to those interested in bringing the Pennsylvania organization back to life.

Effort Underway To Revitalize

Berry said he knows that there are many issues facing direct marketers, and was glad for the opportunity to work in developing the new organization.

"I just came through a heavy winter meeting schedule for pricing produce, that's always on everybody's mind," he said.

An effective statewide association could perhaps be better able to teach members how to price their produce.

According to Berry, one of the constant demands upon direct marketers is, "... trying to understand how the customer is always changing and how the business has to keep changing to meet those needs."

But he also said there are other issues affecting direct marketers, such as roadside signage concerns and local ordinances, to national regulations — the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is attempting to pass apple cider pasteurization rules, Berry said, which represents a very big concern for those who press their own cider and can't afford to purchase pastuerization equipment.

Also, he said some local government officials, not necessarily pro-agriculture, can have "... a different interpretation of whether direct marketing or some on-farm value-added activities are 'farming,' and whether they should receive the same protections."

The association could conceivably come to the support of a member whose marketing or added-value practices are challenged by local anti-farming powers.

Also, the association could help members to be aware of some aspects of business that may get overlooked, such as being properly insured and how to get that insurance.

"A basic farm policy may not cover (a direct marketing venture)," Berry said, adding that direct marketers should want to know what options they have and what liabilities they may have.

According to Berry, the goal is for members of a restructured PRFMA to receive benefits from education, promotion, cooperation and representation.

An amount of money has been left in escrow from the previous organization and, since the organization has been inoperative for almost a decade, the use of that money is allowing the group to offer a first-year, free membership.

According to bylaw, membership is divided into three catagories — the voting members are those who market, produce or grow for direct marketing.

"This would include anyone involved in marketing farm products direct to consumers at farm stands, roadside markets, pick-your-own farms or farmers' markets. The types of farm products could include vegetables, fruit, fresh cut and dried flowers, bedding and other garden plants, cheese, dairy, meats, maple products, honey, Christmas trees, processed goods (jamps pickles, baked goods, etc.) and eggs," according to PRFMA bylaw.

Other non-voting membership catagories include those serving as "supporting/associate/sponsor" members who would be subject to dues, once a dues-schedule is established; and "honorary" members, selected by the board of directors, who wouldn't be subject to dues.

Free memberships are being accepted for voting and supporting, non-voting memberships.

A membership application form is on the March 23 agenda for board approval.

The board of directors thus far includes Rob Ferber, store manager at Linvilla Orchards, president; John Rinehart of Rinehart Orchards in York County, vice president; David Hodge, from Highland Orchards, treasurer; Fred Funk from Willow Street; Steve Quigley of Merrymead Farm; Karen Vollmecke from Vollmecke Orchards; PSU Extension advisor Tom Murphy of Williamsport; and Warren Mathias with the state Department of Agriculture; and Herb Gebley of Kutztown Produce Auction.

According to Berry, the group formed some initial committees — an action committee, a nominating committee to develop some choices for next year's election of officers, a treasurery transition committee, a bylaw committee, and a membership committee.

Farmers Host Outreach Luncheon

LEOLA (Lancaster Co.) — Farmers and agricultural people have always been fascinated by "farm bull stories." Usually, they are glad these true life stories are told by somebody other than a family member or a friend, because they often do not have a good outcome.

But on Saturday, March 14, John St. John, a Chester County dairy farmer, will talk of his tangle with Samuel the bull, and how that brush with death enhanced his faith in God. St. John, from New London, Pa., will be the keynote speaker for the annual Spring Outreach Luncheon of Southeasst Pennsylvania's chapter of Fellowship of Christian Farmers, International.

The luncheon also features special music by the Howard Hagan family of Quarryville, and personal testimony by others. The luncheon begins at Noon on March 14, at the Leola Family Restaurant, five miles east of Lancaster on Route 23.

Tickets cost $10 per person for ages 12 and up; $5 for children ages 4 to 12; children under 4 are free.

Reservations should be made by Tuesday, March 10 with one of the following: David Bitler, (610) 944-0541; Don Hershey, (717) 665-3808; or Grant Troop, (717) 786-8045.

Finding Good Farm Employees

As farms expand and diversify, employees become an integral part of the operation. Unfortunately, most of us farmers never had any classes on how to find and hire a good employee. However, Dr. Bernie Erven, professor and extension specialist in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Ohio State University, and one of the nation's leaders in farm human resources, offered some insights at the 1998 Farm Business Financial Management School.

We all know finding good workers is not negotiable. Have you ever seen a business, any business, succeed while its people failed? Without good employees, a business will never reach its peak business goals.

But luckily, there are several ways to find good employees. The first is to look within your business. Do you have someone, currently, that you could give more responsibility to build a better employee? This may require some additional training, but the end result could be a very productive person. Promoting from within is a common business practice that builds solid, loyal employees.

The second method in finding good employees is hiring someone from the general labor pool. Note that I did not say the farm labor pool. People from the general labor pool can be tremendous employees, but remember that there will be more training involved.

Also, when advertising for your farm labor position be aware of the language and content of the advertisement. Rather than, "Farm Laborer Needed. Call 555-7272" as your business advertisement; try something like "Are you looking for work in the outdoors? Do you like animals? Would you like working with your hands for a feeling of accomplishment? We may have a position for you! Flexible hours. Free training included. Call 555-7272 to find out more exciting details." Creativity in advertising can bring successful people to your farm. Remember if you wouldn't apply for the job, chances are, neither will good employees.

When preparing to hire new employees, Dr. Erven offers the following checklist for filling a position:

Determine your labor and management needs (Based on your business plan).

Develop a current job description.

Build a pool of applicants (Remember to be creative in your advertisement).

Review applications and select those to be interviewed.

Interview (Be prepared. Don't lose a good employee because you conducted a poor interview).

Check references (Look for attendance history, job performance, etc.).

Make A Selection, Hire

Be careful you don't rush into a decision, and hire employees when you don't have time to train them. Instead, develop a timeline that provides a timely response to your applicants and also fits into your business schedule. You'll both be better off. Many times farmers will hire the first person that can successfully find their farm and ring the doorbell.

Over the next few months we will be discussing strategies for building your own professional team and board of directors. Different components of these strategies include accountants, attorneys, bankers, technical support, financial planners, ag salespeople, and others. These are all people with a vested interest in your success, and creating an environment that allows them to work together can be very successful for your operation.

Feel free to send your comments and ideas to Jim Shirk at the Chamber by email, HYPERLINK mailto:jshirk@lcci.com or call him at (717) 397-3531.

Tobacco Settlement? Tobacco Referendum? Tobacco Quotas? Tobacco Allotments? Confusing Issues!

ROBERT ANDERSON
Lancaster Co. Agent

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennsylvania tobacco growers have a lot to think about and a lot of facts to gather before voting in the Tobacco Referendum to be held from March 23 through March 27 at county FSA offices.

What is the "Tobacco Settlement?" At this time, it is several bills which have been introduced into the US Congress which will attempt to reduce the amount of tobacco used by Americans, especially youth; increase the amount of funds available through tobacco taxes to fund a variety of tobacco use reduction and medical issues; make payment to tobacco farmers in the elimination of quotas; and to help tobacco farmers find alternative crops to grow in place of tobacco. There are several bills which have been introduced by a variety of legislatures. Speculations are that the two bills with the best chance of passing are the Lugar and the Ford Bills. However, this is all speculation at this time.

While a lot could change in these or other bills before passage, several issues seem constant between proposals. Settlements will be made with tobacco growers in states where quotas exist or where quotas have not been voted down by growers. Non-quota tobacco production areas which include: Maryland, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Massachusetts will not be part of the settlement. That means any funds made available to quota states for growers will not be available to Pennsylvania growers.

A National Tobacco Conference was held in Lexington, Kentucky this past January. Several economists attempted to summarize what impacts they thought the proposed "Tobacco Settlement" legislation would have at the farm level. Most of the economists agreed on a few key points. First, the price at which tobacco sells in the future will be less than it is today. Second, lower prices will make the United States more competitive in world tobacco markets. Third, an increase in exports could result in an expansion of tobacco acres in the US. Fourth, farms growing large acreage of tobacco are more likely to survive the change than are small acreage growers.

Pennsylvania has always voted down tobacco quotas. Maryland has voted them down since the 1960s. How will the vote go this year? It will depend on what growers know and how they feel about what is happening. In a recent phone call to Maryland, I asked Dave Conrad, Tobacco Specialist in Maryland, how he felt the vote would to in Maryland. His response was "It depends on what Maryland growers know about the 'Tobacco Settlement,' how they feel about not being part of it, and what happens with this year's sale of tobacco." He continued, "At this time, I don't think there will be a favorable vote here." The Maryland Auctions begin the week before the referendum. Many Maryland growers may not make a decision until the last minute before they vote.

The vote in Maryland could impact Pennsylvania tobacco growers. To determine if a tobacco is under quotas, farmers must vote a 2/3 majority in favor of the quota. Because quotas go across state llines, a strong yes vote in Maryland could mean Pennsylvania growers of Maryland Type Tobacco could be under a quota. It could also mean that the traditional Pennsylvanai Type 41 tobacco could no longer be grown in the state without a major change in US tobacco legislation. Federal Law prohibits the growing of a non-quota tobacco in a state with a quota. This would be the case if growers of Maryland type tobacco vote in favor of quotas.

If Pennsylvania would become a quota state as as result of the referendum, each grower would be given a production allotment. The exact details on how this is determined by the FSA is not available at this time because the FSA office here has never had to deal with that issue and does not have the appropriate manuals. However, the allotment is based on growers past production, possibly market slips for the past 3 to 5 years. This slips for the past 3 to 5 years. This past production history for each grower is then weighed against the total production for that type of tobacco during the comparison period. From this information, a percentage of total production for each farm is calculated. This percentage of the total production is then used to compute each grower's production based on the next year's projected need for that type of tobacco. After this is determined, each grower is given an allotment for the number of pounds of tobacco they can market in the next season. In addition, there is a way that small or new growers can get new or expand the amount of their allotment. However, quotas would only be in effect until the "Tobacco Settlement" is completed based on the proposed legislation. By voting in favor of quotas. Maryland and Pennsylvania farmers would become part of what ever financial settlement is included in the "Tobacco Settlement" for tobacco growers.

More Proactive Approach Needed To Rid Public Fears Of 'Mutagenic' Land-Applied Sludge

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — If the wastewater treatment industry wants to convince farmers to use land to dispose of properly treated sludge, then a more proactive approach could work wonders to stop ungrounded fears and to rid the public's misconceived "danger" of sludge to the environment.

More than a dozen environmental officials, educators, and agri-industry representatives were told that all sludges should be tested for "mutagenicity" (having materials that can cause mutations in animal and human DNA, a possible precursor to cancer) based on "perceived risk" to the public.

And the wastewater industry could do well to help facilitate research into the use of lime dosages to stem the mutagenicity of sludge, according to Sean M. Furjanic, environmental health scientist.

Furjanic, a graduate research assistant from Penn State University-Harrisburg and a private consultant, spoke Thursday afternoon at the Lancaster Campus of Harrisburg Area Community College (HACC). The seminar was one of several to address HACC's ongoing "3 R's Series" called "The Cutting Edge of Resource Management — Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle."

The "interactive" seminar at Lancaster HACC featured responses by a leader in wastewater treatment, a Pa. Department of Environmental Protection engineer, a district conservationist, and a HACC biology faculty member. They all responded to the issues brought forth by Dr. Katherine Baker, assistant professor of environmental microbiology at Penn State-Harrisburg.

Working with Baker, Furjanic presented the results of his own research into the use of Quicklime at various doses and under various stringent and sophisticated levels of monitoring to see their effects on mutagens in sludge, otherwise known as "biosolids." The focus was from a biologist's approach rather than a chemist's, according to Baker.

Furjanic pointed out the public's reluctance in some cases to support the land application of biosolids on farmland. In York County a sign reads "Sludge — toxic to life." The county, according to Furjanic, has a few opposition groups that pose a challenge to scientist-educators.

The research looked into the questions: is there an optimal dose of lime that could be used to treat sludge? Could more than optimal rates have an even better effect on controlling mutagens?

It took a lot of effort, but finally Furjanic was able to select four wastewater treatment plant sludges that could support mutagens. It was difficult to find such sludges, since most municipal treatment centers have stringent restrictions on the amount of metals and other environmentally unfriendly materials conducive to supporting mutagens in sludge.

Furjanic tried various ratios of treatment of the Quicklime to sludge and different sludge combinations. He made use of the Ames Test. The sludge extracts were treated with pre-incubated Salmonella bacteria and the growth and progress of the bacteria was monitored. The life of mutagens was monitored.

There were three interesting observations, according to Furjanic, as a result of the research:

1. Dewatered sludge increases in mutagenic activity after 10 days, then slowly declines.

2. Lime/ash and sludge/ash mixes could prove the best stabilizing agents, but material toxicity could be in question.

3. An interesting phenomenon, according to the environmental scientist, was that, one day after the lime ratio was brought to 3.5 parts to 1 of sludge, the sludge "nearly doubled in mutagenicity." It does taper off, eventually — but after 90 days remains more mutagenic than ordinary dewatered sludge.

The common and most direct finding: a 1 to 1 ratio of Quicklime to sludge, which raises the pH to 11 or higher, works to control mutagenic effects of the sludge. The addition of more lime significantly reduces mutagenic capabilities of dewatered sludge.

One hypothesis was reduced: does increasing dose to 3.5 parts to 1 reduce mutagens? No.

The second hypothesis: is there an optimal dose for treating sludge? There are conflicting results, and more work needs to be done.

Generally, according to the scientist, certain lime doses to dewatered sludge can reduce the mutagenicity of biosolids.

But the "perceived" issue is the very word — mutagens — which cause widespread fear in the public, who have little tolerance for anything mutagenic being spread on fields. But mutagens, said Furjanic, are present everywhere — in garden vegetables, coffee, and beer. In fact, nine mutagens have been identified in fried hamburger.

"Coffee, hamburger have mutagens in them," he said. "It's just a matter of dose." Baker noted that mutagens "can interact with DNA — any DNA, from bacterium to human DNA," she said. The question remains: how to they go about at what doses to produce cancer in humans?

In the responses, Don Robinson, Lancaster County Conservation District manager, asked if the results can be transferred to the field under climatic conditions, and how the high pH of 12 will affect the nutrient capability of the soil.

How would the high pH impact soil if the grower is managing nitrogen and other nutrients to produce 150 bushels per acre of corn? The high pH of the sludge will increase soil pH. That's why "you can't have heavy application rates," noted one application expert. But effects on soil biological activity need to be assessed in the field.

As a result, Baker noted that the next stage of research should involve testing the lime-treated sludge on a variety of soil and rainfall situations. A more "proactive" approach an provide the way to address public concerns, simply by the wastewater plants performing reliable bioassays on the material before applying it to farm fields — to assure the safety of the product.

Baker noted that, whether it is dead leaves going on the soil or human refuse, there will be "carcinogens" present.

Robinson said that the "proactive approach" is the right thing to do. However, the questions of using that much lime and placing it on the fields could pose concerns to the farmer.

Dee Walter, HACC adjunct faculty, biology, also was pleased with the proactive approach and the cooperation of industry and landowners to getting rid of sludge "in a safe and effective manner." But more research into the use of biological assays is necessary. The willingness of the wastewater industry and researchers to address the public safety concern "is a step in the right direction," she said.

Jay R. Snyder, Borough of Ephrata environmental resource manager, also applauded the proactive stance. "I am the one challenged with taking it out to the field," he said. "The last thing I want to do is pollute the land of friends and neighbors."

But the public should also concern themselves with looking at materials that make "our own body healthier to fight off mutations," he said, including a healthy diet that contains antimutagenic and anticarcinogen materials, such as green, leafy vegetables. "We live in a harsh environment," said Snyder.

C. D. Vu, engineer with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), noted there were positive implications of the research done. But more work is needed to determine the differences of what happens in laboratories compared to the field.

The results of the tests will be published in Water Environment Federation.

The next step, noted Baker of Penn State, is to work with cooperating municipalities and DEP to set up in-field testing of how land-applied sludge effects overall soil health and more work into curbing mutagenicity of biosolids. It's where the "research has to go," she said.

Maryland Ayrshire Breeders Meet

Maryland Ayrshire Association for the upcoming year are: Bob Valentine, president; Ralph Shank Jr., vice president; and Mary Swank Creek, secretary/treasurer. New directors are Mr. David Patrick, Charlie Hudson, and John Kagel.

Ralph Shank, Palmyra Farm, at Hagerstown, was this year's somatic cell count award winner and herd management award winner. Mr. Shank milks 116 cows, with ECM at 19,223 pounds, and 81.9 percent SCC in the low group.

Mr. David Patrick was production award winner. Mr. Patrick and a brother, James, milk 60 Ayrshires in their combined Ayrshire and Holstein herd at Maple Dell Farm in Woodbine. Energy corrected milk on a 3-05 equivalent was 22,006 pounds.

Mike and Mary Creek, Ayrshire breeders from Hagerstown, received special recognition for the years of dedication and service they have devoted to the Ayrshire juniors. Amanda Valentine, Maryland Ayrshire queen, credited the Creeks for the success of the youth program at local and national shows. "They've done this for at least five years, and a lot of us are in a dairy bowl, too, so they kind of make up for us when we're not here," said the Ayrshire queen. "This is one of the hardest working group of young people that are in that building at Louisville that week," added Bob Valentine, president.

The very successful Ayrshire youth program highlight the level of commitment of the young people and their leaders. "Juniors turned in more record books to the National convention than any other state," said Bob Valentine, "Last year we were very fortunate to have both the outstanding male, Mark, and female, Becky. Becky was also selected to be the National Ayrshire queen. So our juniors do participate, not only locally, but at the national level."

The Mark he was referring to was he and his wife, Madeline's son, Mark Valentine, of Thurmont. Mark was named outstanding male youth of 1997 by the Ayrshire breeders at the National level. Becky Patrick, daughter of Mike and Kathy Patrick, Woodbine, was selected as the outstanding female youth and was also crowned as the National Ayrshire queen for 1997-98.

Sixteen total record books were entered by the youth, and one winner was selected in each age category. Out of four seniors Mike Creek had the winning record book. Seven intermediate record books were entered, with top honors going to Robert Doody. In the junior class there were five entries, and the winner was Jordan Creek.

Four new junior members were welcomed into the association. They are: Sherrie Albaugh, Amy Richardson, Ryan Jaynne, and Joseph Stowe.

Dr. Lee Majeskie from the University of Maryland talked about the breed's success. "We hear a lot about Holsteins in this state, but there are some other breeds that are doing very well," he said. He indicated production per cow is really going up among Maryland Ayrshires. There are four herds in the state on test with 10 or more Ayrshires. Energy corrected milk for those herds increased 2,450 pounds between 1996 and 1997, with ECM for 1997 averaging 19,160 pounds. Regular milk increased 2110 pounds, the highest increase of any breed in the state for milk, said Dr. Majeskie.

In other business news, next year the Ayrshire Association and the Brown Swiss Association will break new ground in Maryland as they jointly host a 1999 National convention for both breeds. "Maryland - Where Breeds Combine" is the theme of the first-ever combined breeds convention, to be held at Turf Valley Country Club in Ellicott City.

The combined convention will put Maryland breeders in the spotlight. "They'll be looking for us to be a role model," said Becky Long Chaney, who along with Martha Clark is co-chair of the 1999 joint National Ayrshire and Brown Swiss convention.

Several fund-raisers are currently under way to help offset the costs of the convention. A Longaberger basket raffle offers ticket holders the chance to win one of 30 Longaberger baskets being given during the month of June — one each night. One thousand tickets will be sold for the basket raffle at $5 each or 5 for $20. A 50/50 raffle is also under way, with the drawing to be held at the 1998 National Ayrshire convention in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Tickets for the 50/50 raffle are $1 each or 6 for $5. Tickets for the raffles may be purchased from youth members or by contacting Becky Long Chaney at 2037 Dennings Rd., New Windsor, MD 21776 (410) 775-7041.

Separate histories of the Ayrshire and Brown Swiss breeds in Maryland are being compiled for the 1999 convention. Breeders and descendants of breeders in Maryland are being asked to submit the following information to make the history books as thorough and interesting as possible: family name and members, farm name, location, a brief description of the farm and cattle to include fairs shown at, top cows, awards, etc., and at least 5 but not more than 10 photographs of family members with the breed. Also requested are personal recollections of interesting, unique, funny, or even tragic stories related to dairying or certain special cows. All photos will be returned. Please address all materials to Becky Long Chaney at the above address.

compounds, some available for plant use, others not. Soil tests generally can not discern between plant-available and non-available forms of the nutrients, just the presence of the nutrient.

There are ways to estimate the amount of nutrient available for plant use, but it is not an exact science, as tests are not capable of determining such.

While DEP officials said they are working with EPA to try to keep as much of the state's nutrient management program intact, the phosphorus issue is a new matter.

Lancaster Holstein Tour Group Sees Many Excellent Cows

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

GETTYSBURG (Franklin Co.) — A congenial group of registered Holstein breeders left the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster Tuesday morning for the annual tour sponsored by the local Holstein Club. Even though the day got progressively colder and windier, the warmth of fellowship and the visiting with fellow dairymen in Franklin and Adams Counties made for an enjoyable day for all 41 of us on the tour bus. Our hosts showed us an incredible number of high producing and high scoring cows.

The first stop was Bo-Joy Farm where the John and Bonnie Hess family have built a new milking facility and free-stall barn to expand the operation for their five children, in-laws, and grandchildren.

They started milking in the double 10 (expandable to 18) milking parlor in September of last year. Since then, they have increased the herd from 240 cows to about 450 cows with an eye to reach 500 cows. The herd average is 23,000m, and the herd is divided into various feeding groups according to age and production. In addition to a registered and grade Holstein herd with 65 percent registered, a few notable Brown Swiss cows are in the herd.

The calves are raised to nine months at the home farm and then moved to a neighboring farm to grow into replacement heifers. The larger operation has realized some efficiences of scale that include a lower electricity bill. In the milking parlor one person can do the milking. On 3x, the parlor is utilized efficiently with a two-hour clean-up time between milkings.

They farm 900 acres.

Noted for their show herd, Penn Gate's most recent honors include the All American Best Three Females that were present in the barn.

Steve said they flush several top cows for their own herd improvement but have somewhat backed off from contracts because of the length of time it takes to fulfill the contracts.

About one-fourth of the herd is classified excellent. A barn fire several years ago burned down into the stable from the upper floor and has made the Woods very conscious of the possibility of losing the whole herd along with the barn. A neighbor came home from his off-farm night job three hours earlier than usual and noticed the smoke coming from the barn. He called the fire company and awakened the Woods. They were able to lead the cows to safety, but today, a fire alarm system is in place to give warning both in the barn and in the house.

The neighbor received a registered calf from one of Woods' best cow families as a gift for saving the cows.

At Rice-Crest Farm, brothers Dale and Fred Rice milk 265 cows that average over 22,000m. They are especially noted for two cow families that form the basis of their ET and embryo exporting business. Eight daughters of Luke out of Ned Boy full sisters are an impressive part of the herd.

Of course, the Rices are the breeders of the Tesk Terry and the newly released Marty bulls. The brothers are in partnership with their families, and the herd size and the acres farmed has steadily increased. Machinery repair work and building construction and repair are done with the help of their four full-time employees. Because of the lay of the farm land, more than half of the manure is spread by irrigation directly onto the fields.

The cows are milked in a free-stall and milking parlor set-up. The Lancaster group pulled into the farm at noon behind another tour bus that included the Lebanon County Holstein tour group. Both tours were planned independently but on the same day to accommodate tour farm hosts who get ready for visitors.

At Autrim-Spring Farm, brothers Rodney and Roger Crider are well known for their local and district show herd. The Criders have a number of breeder/exhibitor banners from these shows. Many of the cows come from families with a lot of longevity. For example, one of the old excellent cows is 12 years-old with records to nearly 30,000m and over 1,000lbs. in both fat and protein. One of the noted cows in the herd lived to be 17 years-old.

Another excellent cow is red, and the dam of two heifer calves that are going to spring sales.

They milk 70 cows in a tie-stall barn. Crops are raised to feed the cows through a TMR mix. The brothers are in partnership and they raise service age bulls. A number of beautiful cows stand in the end stalls that show a lot of good style and good udders. In addition to the excellent cows, a number of cows are classified high very good to 89 points.

Walnut Lane Farm gets its name from the row of walnut trees that edge the road on the way into the beautiful farmstead. Along with the tie-stall barn that is used as a milking parlor, and a new free-stall barn, the grand old farm house and spring house add to the picturesque setting.

With the Wa-Del prefix, Rick Wadel's family have 125 cows that average 23,600m. Rick does extensive ET work using high TPI bulls, and was ranked number one for providing the top genetics based on net merit for five consecutive runs.

The herd includes family members of RD Matt and Challenger with fancy daughters of Elton, Converse, and Bellwood. They farm 350 acres and also do custom crop work.

As the farmers rode back to Lancaster, the talk was about what to do for the next tour. Maybe it will be a longer trip. Or maybe a shorter one. But you can be sure a lot of good fellowship and the view of many good cows will be part of it.

Bishard Earns Junior Angus Bronze, Silver Awards

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. – Suzanne Bishard, York, Pa., has qualified for the bronze and silver awards of the National Junior Angus Association, announced James Fisher, director of junior activities for the American Angus Association.

Suzanne, the 20-year-old daughter of Brad and Lois Bishard, is a student at Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture. She has shown her Angus in many local, state and national shows and competed in showmanship contests. Keeping weight records and performance information is an important part of Bishard's herd management. In addition, she has served as secretary of the Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association and has been a junior member of the American Angus Association since 1987.

The bronze and silver awards are the first and second levels of the National Junior Angus Recognition Program that began in 1972. Junior Angus breeders must apply for the award and then meet point requirements in many areas of participation before receiving the honor. Applicants are evaluated in the areas of junior Angus association activities, participation in showmanship and leadership competitions, using performance testing to improve their herd and their progress in producing and merchandising Angus cattle.

Vegetable Marketing, Research Program Aggressively Promotes Pennsylvania Vegetables

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — For the past eight years the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program has aggressively promoted Pennsylvania-grown vegetables in retail markets and on newspaper food pages. For the past two years, they have erected billboards promoting Pennsylvania vegetables during July and August. These promotional efforts are funded by Pennsylvania vegetable growers.

Billboards

In 1997, the Program posted 15 billboards across the state that reminded consumers that Pennsylvania produce was "In Season Now!" during July and early August. Billboards in the Pittsburgh, Erie, Altoona, Shippensburg, Central Susquehanna Valley, Scranton, Reading, and Chester County areas were visible to an estimated daily audience of 234,300 for 30 days. That translates into a potential of 7 million viewings although naturally most of the viewings would be repeat viewings for motorists who daily used those highways. Of course, there is also great value in having a promotional message repeated many times before the same audience.

The billboard campaign was made possible by a $10,000 matching grant from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. It was a continuation of the Program's 1996 billboard project, also financed in part with a $10,000 grant from the Department of Agriculture plus $5,000 from the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association.

The 1996 project inspired the Department to work with the Food Merchants Association on a Produce Pilot Project to erect 25 billboards promoting Pennsylvania produce in 1997 in six southeastern counties. These were in addition to the 15 erected by the Vegetable Program. They were the same design as the Vegetable Program's and featured an adaptation of the Vegetable Program's logo. The pilot project coordinator, Jeff Patton, also worked with supermarkets to encourage them to purchase more local produce. The Department of Agriculture plans to expand this produce promotion project in 1998.

Point-of-Purchase Materials

As part of the Program's matching grant project, new supplies of price cards and price paddles were printed for the 1997 and 1998 seasons. The design of the full-color price cards was coordinated with the billboards while the price paddles were given a fresh new look, proclaiming in green letters "FRESH! Pennsylvania Produce."

For the past eight years, the Vegetable Marketing and Research Progarm has promoted Pennsylvania vegetables by supplying growers with point-of-purchase materials for their retail markets. Besides the new materials printed this year, growers could also order full-color posters, "Good Nutrition from Asparagus to Zucchini" consumer brochures, frequent buyers posters and cards, full-color logo stickers, and logo slicks.

As part of the Program's matching grant, a larger 7" x 11" full-color price was printed especially for supermarkets. It was the same design as the smaller 5" x 7" price card distributed to growers. These were made available to the 104 stores in the Produce Pilot Project as well as to all Weis Market and BiLo food stores. The idea behind these price cards is to enable the supermarkets to identify their local produce as Pennsylvania-grown with attractive, professional signs comparable to signs distributed by promotion organizations from other regions of the country. The Program also supplied some Giant Eagle stores with its "Pennsylvania Proven Produce" posters.

Press Relations

Each year the Program sends out press releases to newspapers across the state highlighting the different local vegetable crops as they come into season. This year the results have been especially favorable.

The press release on sweet corn resulted in 29 articles in newspapers reaching 274,670 readers while the release on cantaloupes brought in 23 articles in papers read by 447,416. Releases on tomatoes, peppers, snap beans, cole crops, and pumpkins and squash prompted an additional 77 articles. So far a total of 129 articles have been published in newspapers read by nearly 1.8 million people across the state. In the years since the Vegetable Marketing and Research Program began its press relations efforts, hundreds of newspaper articles have reached nearly 14 million readers across the state.

Program Faces Referendum

Every five years the Vegetable Marketing and Research faces a grower referendum. The Program was established in 1988 under the Pennsylvania Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act of 1968. The Act requires the Secretary of Agricultural to conduct a referendum of the affected growers every five years to see if they want the Program to continue. The Program is funded by annual assessments which all growers in the state are required by law to pay. The Vegetable Program's assessment is $25 for any grower growing one or more acres of vegetables for sale plus $1.50 per acre for each acre over 10 acres. Greenhouse vegetable growers are also required to pay the $25 assessment if they grow 1,000 sq. ft. of greenhouse vegetables plus $1.50 for each 1,000 sq. ft. over 10,000 sq. ft. All vegetables, including sweet corn, tomatoes, snap beans, peas, pumpkins, squash, cantaloupes, peppers, cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, etc. are included in the Program except white potatoes. Strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, grapes and other small fruit are not included. Greenhouse space used to grow vegetable transplants is also not included.

The ballots for the 1998 referendum will be mailed March 20 to every grower currently on the list of growers. Other growers who do not receive a ballot in the mail can obtain one by calling 717-787-2376.

Vegetable Program Funds 14 Research Projects

Fourteen vegetable projects will be funded in 1998 by the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program, with $22,500 in grower assessment monies and $20,000 from the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association. Two additional vegetable research projects are being funded with a $3,700 grant from Furman Foods.

Over the past 10 years the Program has contributed over $185,000 to fund 92 research projects, mostly at The Pennsylvania State University. The Vegetable Growers Association has supplied another $100,000 over that time period.

Pallman Elected Program Chairman

Richard Pallman, a Clarks Summit greenwrap tomato grower, was elected the new chairman of the Vegetable Marketing and Research Board at the Board's reorganizational meeting on November 3, 1997. Pallman is also the president of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association although his term in that position will end in January.

Pallman, who has served on the Program's Board since the beginning and on the former Vegetable Research Advisory Board, succeeds David Miller of York. Miller, who served one year as chairman, was elected vice chairman succeeding Pallman in that position.

Daniel Schantz of Zionsville, a former Board chairman, was named to fill the third seat on the Executive Committee. He succeeds Frederick Funk of Millersville, another former chairman.

Besides Mr. Funk, the other grower members of the Board are Robert Constantine of Smock, Don Geise of Northumberland, William Goodwin of Lake City, James Hoopes of Ulysses, Robert Kilgore of Brogue, and Robert Trax of Finleyville. Herbert Gebley of the Kutztown Produce Auction represents the collecting sales agents. The Secretary of Agriculture, who appoints the other board members, also sits on the Board.

Legal Action Taken Against Non-Paying Growers

Legal action has again been taken against several vegetable growers who have not paid the annual assessment to the Program. The action was authorized under the regulations promulgated in January 1994 by the Secretary of Agriculture.

The Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Market Development sent certified letters to growers who had failed to respond to the 1996 assessment notices. Ten growers received letters from the Department of Agriculture's legal office. One of the 10 chose to pay the assessment rather than face legal action. The Department is in process of filing civil complaints with a District Magistrate in Harrisburg against the remaining growers.

Last year the Department of Agriculture obtained a judgment against one grower who had not paid the assessment for 1995. This has been turned over to an attorney for collection.

The Board intends to continue its enforcement efforts. While the Board is reluctant to take fellow growers to court, they also feel it is their duty to the hundreds of growers who regularly pay their assessments. To allow other growers to ignore the assessment payment requirement is not fair and only encourages more non-compliance.

Northeast Dairy Compact Called Beneficial

ALBANY, N.Y. - Despite some reservations by a few people, the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact has proven to be beneficial to a dairy farmers shipping milk into the New England states, including nearly 1,000 dairy farmers in New York and some producers in Pennsylvania.

However, according to the Progressive Ag Organization, Meshoppen, the continued and expanded success of the Compact depends on the State Assembly in Albany, New York.

The New York Senate has passed the needed legislation on a 35-15 vote to authorize New York State to join the compact. Now the endeavor is being focused on the New York Assembly. Every dairy farmer and all agri-business people in New York State should be urging their local assemblyman to support the Compact. In addition, everyone should contact the members of the Assembly in New York City and convince them to support the Compact.

Pennsylvania

Senator Noah Wenger, chairman of the Pennsylvania Senate Agriculture Committee, has announced that the Senate Ag Committee will hold a statewide hearing on Senate Bill 170. The Bill was introduced by Senator Roger Madigan from Bradford County. S-170 would allow Pennsylvania to join the Northeast Compact.

The hearing will be held on Friday, April 3 at the Penn College in Williamsport, PA beginning at 9 a.m. Penn College (formerly Williamsport Community College) is located on West Third Street.

Senator Wenger will be making an official announcement of the hearing in the near future.

Many farmers still do not realize the amount of extra money paid to the dairy farmers shipping milk into the Compact area.

ADADC Meeting

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Dairy farmers will learn more about their investment in product promotion at a kick-off barbecue during the 1998 Spring Dairy Expo.

The American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, the advertising and promotion organization funded by dairy farmers in Ohio, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania, will host an annual meeting Thursday, April 2, in the George V. Voinovich Center at the Ohio Expo Center. The dinner will begin at 4 p.m. and is free to those in attendance.

ADADC Mid East will share with dairy farmers how their check-off dollars are making a difference for the dairy industry. Since the check-off program began in 1983, milk sales have increased by 27 percent. Per capita consumption has increased by 11.5 percent. That's an increase of 72 pounds more dairy products per person — triple the growth seen in the 12 years prior to the establishment of the national dairy promotion program! In addition, before the program began, the surplus of milk was 16.8 billion pounds. Since then, an additional 33 billion pounds of milk is being sold today!

Melange Of French Design Greets Visitors To The World's Largest Indoor Flower Show

Florist William J. Franklin, Philadelphia, captured the imagination of a French garden. At the show, a simple garden wagon cart was overflowing with many types of flowers, including red ginger, purple monkshood, pussywillow, royal lilies, Queen Proteus, roses, snapdragons, French tulips, heather, and Veronica.

PHILADELPHIA — A mixture of different ideas is often dubbed a "melange." Such a melting pot can turn into a thing of pristine splendor.

Thousands of visitors caught the grandeur of France at this year's Philadelphia Flower Show, the largest indoor flower show in the world.

The show, held at the Pennsylvania Convention Center, featured the theme, "La Passion du Jardin," or "The Passion of the Garden."

Visitors glimpsed the artistry of the potager at Chateau de Villandry, the elegant French roses of Henri Delbard, a French country kitchen and dining room, and the magnificent floral reflections at the Versailles-like "Hall of Mirrors." French culinary treasures and the talents of chef Anne Willan were premier events.

The most stunning individual plant was the first place Rhododendron "Ambrosia" shown by Mrs. Lamont DuPont Copel and the Garden Club of Wilmington, Del. The fiery exhibit provided an unequaled shower of intense red to brighten anyone's day.

In this melange, probably the most stunning display was provided by Philadelphia designer Jamie Rothstein, who used information on the display from her trip to Versailles last summer. The "Hall of Mirrors" design towers about 16 feet high, including thousands of stems imported from France.

Rothstein marks her 12th appearance at the Flower Show. Her emotional interpretation of the world-renowned Versailles exhibit drew accolades from those who attended the event.

For more down-to-earth designs, it was easy for florist William J. Franklin, Philadelphia, to capture the imagination of a French garden. The florists have been involved in garden design since 1951. At the show, a simple garden wagon cart was overflowing with many types of flowers, including red ginger, purple monkshood, pussywillow, royal lilies, Queen Proteus, roses, snapdragons, French tulips, heather, and Veronica.

The French theme was spelled out in the Peco Energy Company display, "Les Avenues Des Arts" (The Avenue of the Arts), festooned with crimson pygmy barberry along the bottom, crowned with hybrid impatiens, with a white tree of Vanhoutte Spirea.

Close to the venerable Eiffel Tower replicate was a towering Barberry. Other flowers in the display, also placed in honor of Philadelphia's own Avenue of the Arts, were Zumi Crabapple, Kwanzan cherry, purple leaf Sandcherry, compact "Shamrock" Inkberry, Maiden Grass, Dense Yew, Dark American Arborvitae, Pleasant White Azalea, Tradition and Poukhanese Azalea, Fragrant Viburnum, P.J.M. Rhododendron, Lynwood Gold Forsythia, Red Tip Photinia, Hollywood Juniper, Bergenia, Carpet Bugle, English Ivy, Purple Palace Coral Bells, Victoria Blue Salvia, Silver Dusty Miller, "King Alfred" Narcissus, Norway Spruce, and white, pink, and purple impatiens.

Delaware Valley College contributed some whimsy to the experience with it's "From Flowers to Fragrance to Passion and More" exhibit. One was a white wicker bed filled with Mathiola Incana "Miracle Mix" which won an Award of Merit at the Show.

Laughters and smiles and fresh blooms . . . more lighthearted features included the "Iron Works" display by McNaughton's Landscaping, Cherry Hill and Somers Point, N.J. An abandoned truck, remnants of old iron, and a rustic path filled with ivy and delicate flowering vines overpowered visitors' senses.

Cirque Du Fleur, Designs In Bloom, with special lighting was a standout at the Flower Show.

The display, featuring a little "rust as beauty," won a Best Achievement Award, Best Unique Features at the show. The bottom of the old truck was surrounded by Othello Ligularia and the exhibit featured Japanese Beech Fern, Parrot Feather, and a water garden with Golden Club, Corkscrew Rush, and Winterglut Bergenia, among others in the display. Also included were Limber Pine and "Henry's Garnet" Sweet Spire.

Another zany display was "The Tooleries," J. Franklin Styer Nursery. Lots of brightly painted garden tools were stacked end to end to create "trees" with a base of Rosa Betty Prior, Rosa Aguste Renoir, and Rosa Toulouse Lautrec.

The "theme display" near the beginning featured a painting by Vincent Van Gogh, "Field of Tulips," 1883, with a floral design by Frank Cushing.

The most stunning individual plant was the first place Rhododendron "Ambrosia" shown by Mrs. Lamont DuPont Copel and the Garden Club of Wilmington, Del. The fiery plant provided an unequaled shower of intense red to brighten anyone's day.

HOMESTEAD NOTES

Siblings Turn Rivalry Into 'Making The Best Better'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CLAY (Lancaster Co.) — More than 5.4 million youth celebrate 4-H Conference Week from March 14-21.

The sky is the limit as far as opportunities 4-H'ers can take advantage of doing, but few go as far as Gerald Boyd.

The 18-year-old is the Superior Achievement Award winner. He has been selected as the most outstanding Lancaster County 4-H'er who has best achieved all-around growth in project skills, leadership abilities, improvement in life skills, decision making, citizenship, and participation in club, county, regional, state, and national 4-H events and in school and community service.

The soft-spoken Gerald candidly talks about his beginning years in the 4-H program, and how he weathered bouts of envy and disappointment along the way. It was a maturing process that he believes has well-prepared him for life in the working world.

Gerald seems to shrug off his achievements as inconsequential. Instead, he praises the 4-H program, extension agents that worked with him such as Zoann Parker, Chet Hughes, and Glen Shirk, and his Uncle Darvin Boyd for being a great inspiration and encouragement to him.

Ironically, the fund for the Superior Achievement Award was first established in honor of Gerald's grandparents, Elmer and Pauline Boyd, 14 years ago. His grandfather had been a 4-H leader for 29 years.

Although Gerald doesn't recall much about his grandfather who died when Gerald was a toddler, he does remember his grandmother who shared a lot of family history.

As a shy eight-year-old, Gerald's confidence was greatly boosted when he showed the grand champion junior yearling at the county roundup.

"My dad had given me a really good animal," he said.

Clay View Farm is home for Gerald and Sarah Boyd and the place where they raise dairy, beef, goat, and sheep 4-H projects.

Much to his chagrin, winning didn't come easily the next year. Things became even worse the following year when his little sister started showing hogs in competition. That was the year that Sarah won grand champion hog at four different fairs.

"That is the year that our family found out the way siblings can act when one is winning and the outher isn't," Sarah said.

Gerald smiles in retrospect, but admits, "When she was winning I got jealous and I really despised her at times."

But the sibling bickering was shortlived. By the end of the fair season, Gerald realized that when his sister won, he got half of the earnings.

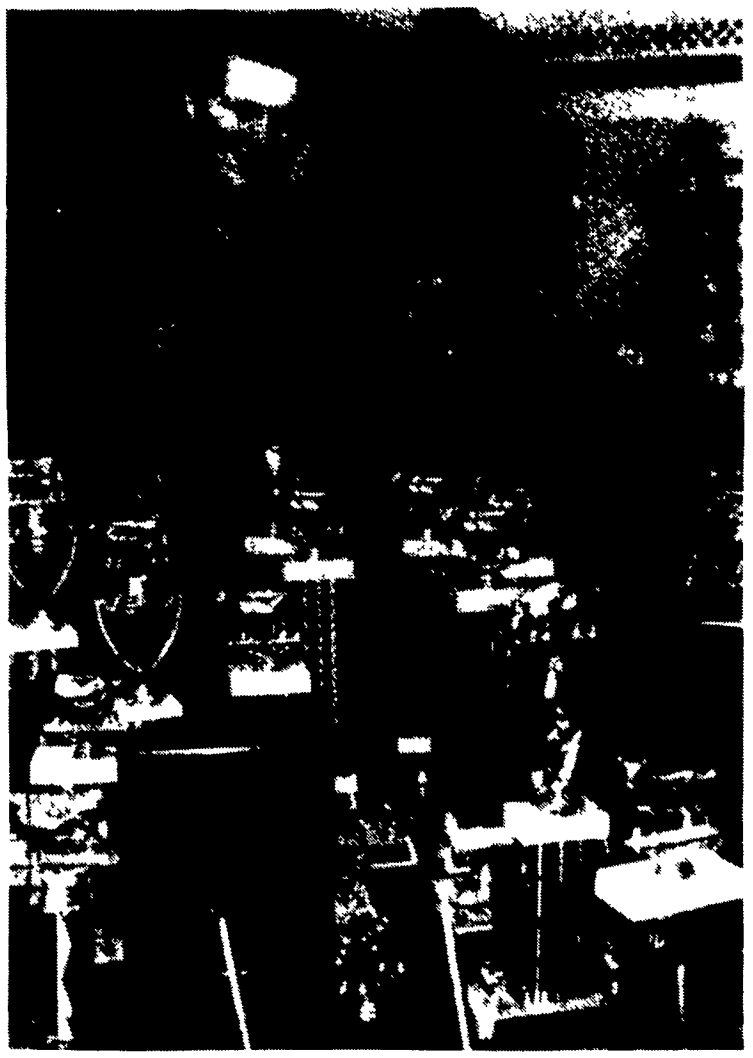
"So we made up and became a team instead of individuals ready to kill each other," Gerald said. "It taught me to learn to share even if was difficult."

While winning is an objective, Gerald soon decided that other objectives were also important, such as encouraging and helping out other members. "You also feel good about the knowledge that you've gained, which is what matters most, and not the winning," he said.

But that philosophy didn't prevent Gerald from winning. Trophies, ribbons, and banners fill his bedroom and a portion of the downstairs family room. Again and again, Gerald showed champion hogs, dairy animals, sheep, and last year, goats.

Throughout the years, the siblings spurred on each other with friendly competition. Each worked individually on their project books by trying to outdo each other. Then they critiqued each other's book.

(Turn to Page B12)



Surrounded with trophies and ribbons Gerald gives his sister Sarah a hug. They candidly share how sibling jealousy turned into love and respect for each other. "We bonded together to make the motto 'Make the best Better,'" Sarah said. "We stuck together." This is only a small portion of the many trophies and ribbons Gerald has earned.

While winning is an objective, Gerald stresses that encouraging and helping out other members is rewarding. "You also feel good about the knowledge that you've gained, which is what matters most, and not the winning," he said.

With exceptionally warm winter temperatures, Stan Brown has kept tabs on the orchard's fruit tree buds even more closely than most years.

While the trees sleep, the Brown family finishes pruning and makes final plans for spring plantings. At right are Stan and Nona Brown, with son Scott, his wife Brenda and their children, Mandy and Travis. Customers often park at their market nearby just to watch the beautiful sunsets over these hillsides neatly planted to rows of fruit trees.

Brown's Market Celebrates Half-Century

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

LOGANVILLE (York Co.) – There was plenty to celebrate at the party thrown recently by the Brown's Orchard Retail Market. A project of a committee of the market's employees, the annual celebration served as a salute to the local orchard's 50th year in business.

"We are so blessed with the team of people we have; we think so much of our employees," says Stan Brown, who with his son, Scott, operates the four-generation family orchard and retail market. "Some of them have been with us for 20 and 30 years."

Apparently the feeling is mutual. Among other tributes from the staff, Brown and his wife Nona were presented a hand-crafted commemorative flag to display at the market.

Brown's Orchards business has deep roots in Loganville history, back even beyond the golden anniversary being celebrated through 1998. After losing his job through the closing of a York manufacturing firm, Brown's father, Earl, altered his career direction to the fruit and poultry farm operated by an aunt. Stan Brown, then 14, quickly developed an interest in the orchard business. His father encouraged him to get a college degree and pursue another career.

But a love for the land had planted itself in Stan Brown's heart. After initial pre-med studies, he returned home in 1953 to work the orchards. The following year, he and Nona, whom he had met at York College, were married. Though the military summoned him in 1956 into the Army engineers, Stan and Nona returned right back home after his two-year service to their beloved rolling hills of peach and apple trees.

During the next 20 years, the Brown's added small parcels of land, gradually expanding the orchard to 74 acres. A 99-acre addition in 1972 more than doubled their production capability. Meanwhile, sales continued from the original small stand along the Old Susquehanna Trail, serving the burgeoning development pouring across rural southern York County.

One Christmas more than two decades ago, Brown tiptoes into the holiday fruit basket business, working from their home. Stand personally "built" the fruit structure in the baskets in one part of the basement, then moved them to another section where a few part-time employees added candies, bows and other decorative extras. The gift basket popularity exploded; within a few years, the Christmas season found every inch of the Brown's basement crammed with baskets in preparation. Some nights, Brown got little sleep trying to keep up with orders.

Meanwhile, their daughter Linda had developed a side business on her own, an outgrowth of 4-H projects. She spent her teenage summers baking fresh fruit breads and cherry puddings to sell at the market, building a college fund. Like the gift basket business, the fresh-baked goods quickly won a following of customers.

With a need for a larger marketing area, the bakery potential and growing demand for fruit baskets, the browns knew a major retail expansion was needed. In May 1986, years of planning fell into place with the opening of a spacious new market facility, sited on a picturesque knoll among the apple orchard. Even before the spring opening, the holiday fruit basket business had been relocated to the unfinished market, finally freeing up the Brown's basement for family use.

"It all flowed together," says Brown of the wildly-successful retail center with its bakery located in one corner, fruit basket area in another, and overflowing with attractive displays of fresh produce and country gifts. Offering top quality has always been the primary goal.

"God helped us find solutions; He has had a hand in this," Nona adds, with a smile.

"We were concerned with how people would react to a market environ," Brown relates. "We wanted a warm atmosphere, with a feeling of friendliness. We decided to use a lot of wood. It has a sort of personality all its own."

From the beginning, the bakery business has played a key role in the market's customer attractions. As the baking demand outgrew Linda's summer sideline, their friend Bill Ream took over her place in the family kitchen, creating his specialty apple dumplings. Ream stayed on for several years after the opening of the market, where apple dumplings remain a favorite of the steady stream of customers.

Though they thought they had heeded advice about not building too small, in less than two years, space was at a premium. The bakery staff was dedicated to the "made from scratch" concept and needed more room. An enlarged bakery crowded the former office and warehouse area, creating a domino-effect of too-little working area for everyone. The solution was the first of several steps of expansion, adding a much larger office, more warehouse space and cold storage. Scott's wife, Brenda, joined the operation about the same time.

"Brenda brought a lot of knowledge of computers to our business," Brown praises his daughter-in-law. "And I can't credit Scott enough for his abilities." The couple is a valuable management team, with Brenda handling the accounting responsibilities and Scott managing the orchards and production side. Their daughter, Mandy, works in the market and son, Travis, has a keen interest in both the orchard and market sides enterprises.

Tree fruits – peaches and apples – remain the mainstays of the Brown's orchard production. Lesser space is devoted to sweet and sour cherries, pears, nectarines, several varieties of plums, even a few apricots when the blooms are spared from spring freezes. Strawberries, including u-pick, are one of the first highlight of the summer season. Blueberries are a more recent, and expanding, addition.

"We used to grow a whole selection of vegetables, but got to the point of not knowing what to do first. So we decided to focus on sweet corn and pumpkins. We have good local people who grow the other things, which helps them and helps us. It's worked out wonderfully," explains Stan.

Brown's pumpkin crop has become a special project handled by Scott's family. They cultivate four acres devoted to the fall favorite, everything from the tiny, decorative types to those with giant jack-o-lantern potential. Last summer, however, with one of the worst droughts in decades sizzling southern York County, the pumpkin crop withered away from prolonged lack of rain.

In addition to keeping customers happy with their 15 or so acres planted in fresh sweet corn, the corn plantings are useful on land being renovated for orchards. Newer varieties of fruit trees tend to be smaller and producing in about half-the time it took the old standard ones; however, they are likely to have a shorter productive life expectancy than older varieties. Therefore, peaches need to be renovated about every 15 years, while apples are generally good for about 20, according to Brown.

"We like to moldboard plow organic matter into the sod for conditioning, before replanting to trees," he says. "At one time, we disked between the trees in all the orchards to keep the weeds down. But that caused soil erosion. Now, we use a sod cover so we don't have to disturb the soil."

In addition, a tight cover of sod, helps to prolong the life of peach plantings. A microscopic pest, the soil nematode called "tomato ringspot" thrives in the roots of broad-leafed weeds, including dandelions. Thick sod helps limit the growth of such weeds, thus helping to delay "peach tree decline."

Along with newer varieties, Scott is cultivating some types of apple trees trained on wire. More shallow rooted, these cultivars are more susceptible to wind damage, and the wire offers added support. And, solid "hedgerows" of trees are, in some ways, more efficient to care for, including the need for lesser amounts of disease control materials.

"We are now getting more production, using less material, than before. The use of spray on a crop is like giving trees medicine when they are sick. You

To commemorate Brown's Orchard Market's 50-year anniversary, their employees presented Stan and Nona Brown with a handcrafted flag to fly over the entrance.

When not at the Market or industry activities, Stan and Nona Brown can often be found catching up on paperwork in their cozy sunroom overlooking the rolling hills of fruit trees.

Baby Caregivers

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – New research has proven that ordinary activities such as rocking your baby, playing peek-a-boo, and singing lullabies help babies learn. By doing these type of activities with your infant, you are laying the foundation for brain development that leads to life-long talents and capabilities. For working parents, these discoveries make the choice of a child care provider an even more important one. When choosing child care, take time to visit several to see if:

• the caregiver spends time holding, cuddling, and rocking infants.

• simply games, like peek-a-boo, are played regularly.

• there are a variety of things to observe and bright rooms with colorful objects to view.

• there is verbal interaction with infants. Infants need to be talked to, sung to, and read to. Telling simple stories and reciting childhood poems are ways to expose an infant to language.

• stories are read often, at least once a day or more. This is an important factor to help infants be ready to learn.

• the caregiver is aware that every infant learns and develops skills at his own pace. There is no right or wrong time-frame. For example, learning the skills needed to walk can take anywhere from 8 months to 15 months and learning language skills varies greatly from child to child.

• there are chances for exercise to strengthen muscles and help coordination. These are as simple as placing the baby on her stomach so she'll lift her head. Putting her on a blanket on the floor will encourage arm and leg movement and reaching for toys.

• the provider is willing to coordinate feeding schedules, bottles, and solid foods with what you and your infant's health care provider recommend for your child.

When selecting child care for an infant, choosing the right caregiver is most important, but the place where care is provided is important, too. Things to look for include the following:

• a clean, bright, cheerful home or center.

• an area where infants can be safe while they look at things and exercise. This can be a blocked-off area where babies can be placed on a clean blanket and be safe to watch other children who may be running and playing.

• bright colorful things to observe at eye level for babies.

• cribs, safety gates, and highchairs that meet safety standards.

• age appropriate playthings. These should be simple and safe.

• a place to post schedules and important notes for parents and caregivers.

Once you have chosen the right place for your child, make sure that your caregiver knows about the free educational materials available from Penn State Cooperative Extension's Better Kid Care Program. For information or to order materials, call 1-800-452-9108.

Nutrition In A Nutshell

When you want crunch, something to munch, and nutritional punch, reach for nuts—peanuts, walnuts, almonds. . . .

Nuts are delicious by themselves and the different varieties provide distinctive taste and texture to enrich any dish.

Technically nuts are seeds, and characteristic of seeds, contain concentrated amounts of nutrition—protein, vitamins such as vitamin E, as well as important minerals.

In the case of peanuts, nutrition in a nutshell means 26 percent protein with no cholesterol. Unsalted, they qualify as a low sodium food. They supply dietary fiber or roughage valuable to the body's waste elimination process.

Here are some delightful recipes from our readers to incorporate nuts into your diet.

ICE CREAM DESSERT

½ cup coconut
½ cup chopped walnuts
⅔ cup packed brown sugar

Mix above with ½ cup melted butter. Put half of mixture on bottom of 13x9-inch pan. Cut up half gallon vanilla ice cream and place on top. Spread top with remaining crumb mixture. Freeze. Enjoy!

PEANUT BUTTER POUND CAKE

2½ sticks butter
2 cups sugar
6 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup peanut butter
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup peanuts, finely chopped (optional)

Cream butter and sugar until light yellow. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until thoroughly blended. Add vanilla, then beat in peanut butter.

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Add flour mixture, a little at a time until well blended.

Line bottom of a nine or 10-inch tube pan with wax paper. Spoon in batter and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes; reduce heat to 325 degrees and bake 15 to 20 minutes longer, until cake tests done.

Cool in pan on wire rack for 10 minutes, then remove and cool completely. If desired, toward the end of baking while cake is still soft, sprinkle ½ cup finely chopped peanuts onto batter to give it a crunchy topping.

Brown's Market Celebrates Half-Century

only use what is absolutely necessary; and the new materials are very short-lasting with little residual. We don't want to throw money away on unnecessary application or use anything that in any way might endanger ourselves," Brown says.

Still, chemical use and food concerns continue to be an occasionally-volatile issue for the industry. Like many apple growers, the Brown's are awaiting the issuance of federal rules on the pasteurization of cider, uncertain which direction they want to proceed. Pasteurization is costly. Unpasteurization can also be costly, if even the rumor of a food scare arises.

Stan does note that during the much-publicized controversy over the use of the chemical Alar, apple sales did indeed climb. Even for veteran retail marketers like the Browns, food safety issues are confusing and weighty problems.

Though the orchard contains a few remaining apple trees from earlier years, some up to 55 years old, new varieties constantly offer improved qualities. Fuji is a late apple which stores well, Jonagold a newer semi-tart good for cooking, Ginger Gold, an early "wonderful" yellow and Gala, a popular favorite.

"They are all very flavorful, some almost revolutionary," Brown comments of the increasingly better qualities of newer apples. "The old varieties are slowing dying in favor of the newer ones." Sometimes, he admits, getting people to just try the newer introductions is the most difficult part of the variety evolution.

With the next generation of Browns taking increasing responsibility, Stan and Nona are giving even more time to education and leadership activities. Both have always been deeply committed to supporting agriculture and the community, including programs such as 4-H and the Chamber of Commerce.

Stan has just stepped down from 12 years on the board of the Pennsylvania Horticulture Association, serving the past two years as its president. That included helping to organize the annual meeting, which pulls together growers of fruits and vegetables for a combined gathering of about 1800. He has also worked closely with the Farm Show apple dumpling booth, a fund-raiser which generates some $20,000 toward the association's education and promotion efforts.

"It was a real privilege to serve in that capacity," he says of his work with the trade association of more than 600 members across the commonwealth. "The people have been great and we've made a lot of long-lasting friends."

Education is the PHA's primary effort, including teaming with Penn State extension specialists in holding meetings around the state. The organization is also heavily involved in horticulture research, providing some $14 million over the years toward a variety of projects.

Working closely with the Horticulture trade Alliance, a lobbying arm of the industry, the horticulture group is constantly involved with legislative efforts Labor issues have been an ongoing issue of concern to the growers' group. Food safety is another area of critical attention, and, in Brown's opinion, a "major scare to all of agriculture "

Having turned the president's gavel over to his successor, Adams County grower Jim Lott, Brown looks forward to continued participation in industry marketing conferences and trade events.

"If you pick up one tip or pointer, it's worth the time and effort it takes. It's also refreshing to talk with others, learn how others do things," he says of their involvement.

And while Stan and Nona Brown are always on the lookout for new ideas they can adapt to their business, they have no plans to make any hasty or dramatic changes to a formula that has been highly successful.

"I don't envision a different mission for the Brown's business," he says. "Just to continue doing what we're doing."

QUESTION — Stacy Holmes, Peach Bottom, is requesting a recipe for making homemade cheese out of goat's milk. She would also like other recipes, except yogurt, for using goat's milk.

QUESTION — J. Martin, Shippensburg, wants recipes for glazed apples and cranberry in a sweet sauce like the one Stouffers makes and for broiled crab cake similar to that served at the Country Oven.

QUESTION — Shirley Horning, Stevens, wants a recipe to make pita bread like that served at Wendy's Restaurant. The bread is moist and not dry like the pita pockets sold in supermarkets.

QUESTION — Valerie Miller, Honesdale, is looking for a recipe for pork roll.

QUESTION — Carolyn Stear, Home, would like a pancake recipe that tastes similar to that served by the Perkin's restaurant chain. She has bought their packaged mix, but doesn't think it tastes at all like those they serve. She also would like pancake recipes that taste like those served by other restaurants. What is the best substance to use on the griddle to get nice even brown pancakes? She'd also like other information and cooking techniques for pancakes.

QUESTION — Susan Harris, Lexington, VA, would like a recipe for fruit cake in the jar.

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

ANSWER — Lee Laverty, Dover, N.J., sends in this recipe that had been requested for escarole soup.

Escarole Soup

Take one whole chicken, wash outside and inside and place in large kettle. Add one large quartered onion, 2 carrots, quartered, 2 stalks celery, 1 clove garlic. Salt and pepper to taste. Cover and bring to boil. Skim off any foam that may come to the surface. Simmer for three hours.

Strain broth into pot. Add two cups of shredded chicken. Remaining chicken can be used for salad. Finely chop one onion and add to broth. Season to taste with salt, pepper, dill flakes. Simmer for 45 minutes until onions are soft.

In the meantime, take one bunch of escarole (about 1 pound) and wash, taking off bruised leaves. Chop into small pieces.

Bring soup to rapide boil and add escarole. Simmer until soft. Add half cup Parmesan cheese and stir quickly.

You can also put the excarole into a blender with some of the broth and give it a quick whirl. Do not do all the escarole at once. Do it in several steps.

I also take two eggs, beat well, add some hot broth to it, pour into the boiling soup, and stir for one minute.

You try to do your best with your youngsters.

Feed them. Coddle them. Tend them when they're sick. Give them the best care you can.

Expose them to culture. Like a variety of reading materials.

And what do they do? Chew on the newspapers.

But then, no one else we know of has figured out how to get a calf to read the daily news instead of nibble it, either.

Bedding our calves and young heifers with paper continues to be one of my favorite, small ways of doing something personal to help the planet. And, it's good for our little girls.

Unlike many users of newsprint for bedding, we do not run ours through a shredding machine. We do have a shredder from earlier years, but the relatively small amount of paper used for several dozen young heifers isn't worth hooking the machine up to a tractor every few days. So our paper gets tossed in loose, by hand, to pens of young stock.

Supply of this recycled material is from friends and neighbors who prefer to see their papers returned to earth, rather than layered in a landfill. So they tie it up, or package it neatly in supermarket sacks, and drop it off in our wagon shed. This bundling is necessary because yours truly does the moving of and bedding with the paper. I pile the bundles into a trusty old wheelbarrow and hand-push it to the pens for use.

Real high-tech stuff there, huh?

The soft paper – no shiny stuff or catalogs – soaks up lots of liquids from the pens. Layered with alternating beddings of straw, it makes a solid and dry bedding pack on which our calves stay warm and clean. The insulating qualities of paper – as well as its "sponge" effect – are both well-suited to bedding use. And in a bedding pack, the newsprint quickly composts down into tiny bits of manure-rich organic matter, which loosens and enhances the soil.

Ashes to ashes, dust to dust, plant growth ultimately back to plant growth. Just one of the cycles of life.

Bedding our youngsters with paper offers rewarding feedbacks beyond the satisfaction of recycling back to the land something otherwise of waste. Tossing the paper around is absolutely wonderful therapy. Here's something you can throw around, pitch with a vengeance, wing into the far corners of the pens, cause no physical harm....and actually be beneficial. It's a perfect solution for those frustrating days when one just feels the need to throw something. The same sort of physical frustration outlet that jogging offers.

Then, there's the added pleasure in watching the calves. They respond to layers of fresh bedding – whether it be paper or straw – by running about, kicking up their heels, butting it with their heads and invariably, chewing away at it. Like any other youngsters cutting teeth. Their pure exuberance always brightens my day.

Occasionally, our recyclers bring us large sacks of shredded office paper. After playing with that stringy stuff for awhile, a pen of calves resembles a bunch of black and white meatballs tossed with spaghetti. They'll have paper draped over their ears, trailing from all four feet, hanging from around their neck.

On occasion, useful items will turn up in the paper bundles. Untouched and still timely grocery-coupons inserts. A newspaper or magazine of particular interest (though we prefer no magazines due to the shiny paper finish). An unused crossword puzzle book. Kid's artwork.

During extended periods of wet weather, our small paper supply is depleted quickly to help keep pens dry. A mild, sunny weekend, with folks cleaning out their garages, usually replenishes it. And, we're grateful for that resource.

Besides, it's always fun to watch people's faces when you suggest to them that you paper-train your dairy calves.

If only we could.

When Blue Cheese Goes Bad

How do they make blue cheese? How can you tell if it's gone bad?

Like all cheese, blue cheese starts out as milk that's thickened, sometimes with the use of special bacteria or rennin, an enzyme from a calf's stomach. The milk separates (as on nursery-rhyme character could tell you) into curds and whey. The watery whey is drained off, and the curds are used to make cheese.

Fresh cheeses, like cottage or farmer's cheese, are unripened and have milder flavor than aged or ripened cheeses. Ripened cheeses are aged in a number of ways, depending on the variety.

Blue cheese is treated with a mold called Penicillium. Some forms of this mold form a liquid, penicillin, when they grow. Others just turn stale bread or decaying fruit a pretty blue or green. Still others are used to manufacture blue cheese, giving it its characteristic blue veins. Manufacturers actually puncture wheels of blue cheese with needles to give the mold enough air to grow and produce the typical blue cheese flavor.

You might not be aware of this, but there are a number of types of blue cheese. One type, Roquefort, is sometimes referred to as the "king of cheeses," having been around since the Roman times (it supposedly was a favorite of Charlemagne). Anyway, Roquefort is made from ewe's milk and is treated with Penicillium roquefortii, and aged for at least three months in limestone caverns near the village of Roquefort in southwestern France. (Other types of blue cheeses are usually made from cow's milk, must be aged at least 60 days, and they can do so in less imaginative places, like refrigerated storage areas. But most are produced using the same mold, Penicillium roquefortii.

Since blue cheese is permeated with mold anyway, you might think it could never go bad. Unfortunately, that's not true. Different types of mold can easily find your brick of blue and decide to start their own feast, ruining yours. Watch our for any out-of-the-ordinary flecks or flurry patches.

Blue cheese usually can last two to four weeks in the refrigerator after being opened or cut into. If used for salads or cooking, blue cheese can be kept frozen for several months. Freezing does make it more brittle, but that's OK for most uses. An ounce contains about 100 calories and 8 grams of fat.

When one mother Pygmie goat has five babies, it is news. That's what happened for Katie, left, and Stacy Schaeffer, Narvon, in Lancaster County. The mother goat, Anna has a history of multi-births. The last two years she had four kids, but not all of them lived. But this year, her five babies are healthy and doing well. Katie is 12 years old and goes to Garden Spot Middle School. Stacy is 11 years old and attends Brecknock Elementry School. Their parents are Mary and Terry Schaeffer. The whole family has a lot of fun with the kids.

The Schaeffers have 10 nannies and two billy goats on the large lot behind their house along route 625 one mile south of Bowmansville. Most of the mothers have already had babies so the place is full of frisky kids full of energy and play. Most of new babies already have potential new homes from standing orders of people who have seen the goats as they drive by the house.

WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK

Why are flowers budding so soon?

March 20 might be the first day of spring, but that hasn't meant much to a lot of trees and flowers — some plants have been showing their spring growth for almost a month!

Nature is playing a joke on the plants, according to our horticulture friends at Ohio State University The unusually mild winter weather has tricked the plants into thinking it's spring — even back in February

Flowers such as tulips, daffodils and hyacinths grow from a special kind of plant part called a bulb Bulbs are really a type of underground stem that never completely die After the leaves die back, the bulbs go into dormancy That's a plant's way of surviving winter by slowing down growth to a snail's pace It s almost like a hibernation for plants

Some flowers, like tulips, need a certain amount of cold time during winter to "wake up" from dormancy and blossom in the spring And, plants define spring as when the temperature starts to get warmer — like it was in February

Other plants, like evergreens or forsythia, aren't truly dormant But they also start to grow when the weather warms up

But why haven t all spring flowers started to grow? While temperature triggers some flowers and trees, others wait until they get more sunshine during the longer days that are closer to summer

Scientifically yours, Twig

First Families

What's it like living in the White House? Children and grandchildren of presidents have lived in the Executive Manston, and there are a number of stories about them Here are just a few

Benjamin Harrison's grandson, Benjamin or "Baby McKee," lived in the White House with his grandfather He drove his own goat cart around the grounds And once when the goat ran off with Baby McKee, the president was seen chasing them down

The Lincolns believed in letting their children have a good time Tad, Abraham Lincoln's son, once bombarded a door with a toy cannon while his father was conducting a Cabinet meeting He also sold refreshments and collected money for war charities at stands he set up at the mansion

Teddy Roosevelt's five younger children ranged in age from three to 14 when they moved into the White House They slid down the stairs on trays they stole from the pantry, bicycled and skated on newly polished floors and had a small zoo Their animals included a badger, a bear, raccoons, cats, dogs, snakes, guinea pigs and a pony When Roosevelt's son, Archie, had the measles, his brothers even took the pony up in the president's elevator to Archie's second-floor bedroom

White Chocolate Macadamie Nut Cookies

1¼ cups flour
½ cup butter, softened
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 tablespoon water
6-ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped
7-ounce jar macadamia nuts, coarsely chopped

In a large bowl, combine flour, butter, sugars, vanilla, baking soda, salt, egg, and water. Beat with mixer on low speed until blended. Stir in white chocolate and nuts. Drop mixture by tablespoonsful, about 2-inches apart onto ungreased cookie sheets, and flattend slightly. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-15 minutes until lightly browned. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

Yield: 2½ dozen.

ANSWER — Jeanne Kenna sent her favorite recipe for Italian Wedding Soup for Elaine Loganton.

Italian Wedding Soup

Meatball ingredients:
1½ pound ground round
Salt and pepper
¾ cup dry bread crumbs or corn flake crumbs
1 egg
½ cup finely minced onion
Minced parsley
Evaporated milk to moisten
Additional soup ingredients:
5-6 quarts defatted chicken broth (canned or homemade)
2 10-ounce packages chopped spinach
½ cup pastina (pasta)
½ pound romano cheese
Boiling salted water

For meatballs: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix meatball ingredients together. Form into very small meatballs. Place on parchment lined 15x10 baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 20-25 minutes or until done. Drain excess fat. Meanwhile, pour chicken broth into a large stockpot or soup pot. In separate pot, cook spinach according to package directions. Drain very well. Add to chicken broth. In separate pot, cook pastina in boiling salted water until done, but still firm, about 6 minutes. Drain well. Add cooked pastina along with meatballs to chicken broth. Adjust seasonings according to taste. Heat through. Finely grate romano cheese into hot broth, stirring at intervals until cheese melts. Ladle into bowls. Serve with extra grated cheese, if desired. Great with crusty bread and crisp green salad. Enjoy.

ANSWER — Pam Laubach wanted a recipe for chewy sugar cookies. Thanks to Donna Graver, Bernardston, MD, for sending a recipe, which she cut out from this column several years ago. Donna writes that it is a hard and chewy cookie that is easy to make and tastes very good.

No Roll Sugar Crinkles

1 cup butter
2 cups granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
2⅔ cups flour
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt

Cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Sift together flour, cream of tartar, baking soda, and salt. Add to mixture. Chill 2 hours or overnight, form into balls, roll in sugar, place on cookie sheets, put 2 to 3 drops water on top of each ball (can use a small medicine dropper or teaspoon).

Bake at 350 degrees until edges are lightly browned.

ANSWER — Thanks to Eileen Greenaway, Somerville, N.J., for sending several recipes.

Chicken Croquettes

2 cups chopped cooked chicken
4 tablespoons chopped mushrooms
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon parsley
Fine bread crumbs
½ teaspoon onion juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk or cream
4 eggs

Combine chicken, mushrooms, salt, pepper, parsley, and the onion and lemon juices. Make a white sauce with the shortening, flour, and milk or cream. Cook three minutes then stir in two of the eggs, beaten until light. Remove from heat immediately and pour into a greased flat dish and refrigerate for an hour or so (the colder the better it will handle). Shape into cutlets and sprinkle both sides of each cutlet with fine bread crumbs. Beat the other two eggs in a deep dish. Dip cutlets into eggs then into crumbs. Fry in deep fat from two to five minutes. Serve with mushroom sauce.

Mushroom sauce:
2 tablespoons shortening
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup cream
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup boiling water
2 cups mushrooms

Make a sauce of the shortening, flour, and cream. Stew mushrooms in the boiling water until tender and add, without draining to the cream sauce. Canned mushrooms may be used, if desired.

The Boyd family are strong supporters of the 4-H program. When Gerald received the Superior Achievement Award, these family members congratulated him. Kneeling are a sister Sarah and cousin Brian Boyd. Parents Deb and Kerry Boyd are beside Gerald. At left are a cousin Jody with parents Bruce and Linda Boyd. At right are his Uncle Darvin and Aunt Linda Boyd. The fund for the Superior Achievement Award was first established in honor of Gerald's grandparents, Elmer and Pauline Boyd, 14 years ago. His grandfather had been a 4-H leader for 29 years.

Siblings Turn Rivalry Into 'Making The Best Better'

"My father believes that doing a project book is just as important as showing an animal and that everything should be done as well as possible," Gerald said.

The siblings must have followed well their father's instructions.

The scrapbooks compiling the story of their 4-H involvement are outstanding. Creativity in arranging pictures, news clippings, and information tell an intriquing story.

Both show journalistic flair in stories expressing their emotions that fluctuate while they work on various projects.

The friendly sibling rivalry paid off this year when their blue books were named the best in the county.

In a surprise farewell to Gerald at the 4-H Livestock banquet recently, Sarah gave a heartwarming speech about her brother.

"It's going to be a sad time next year when no big brother Gerald will be telling me what to do or not to do—when he isn't there to sit with at the shows, share jokes, and listen to me complain," she said.

"He's a wonderful kind of person who makes a great impact on people's lives. He directed my steps instead of telling me what a complete jerk I was acting like at times. It's hard to believe that it took eight years to realize how much my brother means to me."

"I was totally shocked. It was really special of her to do that for me. I didn't realize how much I meant to her," Gerald said.

"We bonded together to make the motto 'Make the best Better,'" Sarah said. "We stuck together."

When it comes to livestock, the whole family gets involved. His mom has a nanny goat and his dad's favorite is pigs.

"We always say Dad spends more time with the pigs than he does with us," Gerald said a smile.

Sarah shares her dad's obsession with pigs, but Gerald prefers dairy animals and is intrigued with goats, after showing them for the first time last year. "Goats," he said, "are humorous with a nice disposition."

Gerald attends Millersville University where he pursues elementary school teaching and special education degrees.

It was actually through showing cows that Gerald's interest in special education was piqued through learning to know someone with Down's Syndrome who shows dairy animals.

"I really like working with kids," Gerald said.

Gerald has also had experience in teaching kids by serving as a 4-H teen leader. During the 4-H Fair Tent Out, Gerald was in charge of all the games with the kids.

Sarah, 11, attends Ephrata High School. She wants to be either a high school gym teacher or an extension agent.

Gerald said that his father, who is a 4-H leader, pointed him in the right direction, but never pushed him.

"It was my idea to get involved with livestock judging. I did it one year for experience and then wanted to quit. But my dad encouraged me to do it one more year," Gerald said.

Lucky he did. That was the year the team took first place in the state and at national competition Gerald placed 15th out of 140 in individual competition.

But it was a trip that a group of 4-H'ers made to Poland that made the biggest impact on Gerald's life.

"It was the greatest experience of my life,." Gerald said. He was especially impressed with the self-sacrificing acts of his host family, who treated him like a king.

"The trip gave me a whole new perspective on life," he said.

"Americans take things for granted. I try not to do so any more," he said. "We have so much compared to what they have."

Gerald was also impressed with the value the Polish people put on families. "My host family came home in the middle of the day just so they could be together," he said.

Especially heart-rending was touring the Holocaust camps near Poland.

"Life doesn't last forever. We can't take each other for granted," Gerald said.

"I'd like to tell other kids," he said, "that 4-H affords many opportunities that allow us to reach for the stars. But you can only achieve your dream if you put time and effort into it. As future educator, I believe 4-H is an organization that will allow troubled youth to reach for the stars, thus keeping them off the streets."

As a means to enable non-farming youth to have the opportunity to work with livestock, the Boyds allowed a boy from a non-farm family to keep an animal on their farm and show it in 4-H competition.

While many 4-H'ers idolize Gerald, he said, "I have disappointments, animals die, I don't get what I expected from breeding, the animals may act stubborn, but I learned that when you get in a negative slump, hang on tight to faith because you have to believe that your luck is going to change."

Poison Prevention Week
March 15-21

Young children constantly explore the world around them, touching and tasting everything they see. Unfortunately, the results could be devastating according to The Central Pennsylvania Poison Center, at the Milton Hershey Medical Center of Penn State Geisinger Health System. March 15-21 is National Poison Prevention Week and we are reminded to poison proof the house.

Children under the age of five are particularly at risk for poisoning because at their stage of development, and as their mobility increases, so does their ability to reach for a dangerous product. By safely managing the majority of poisoning exposures in the home, thousands of needless and costly emergency room visits can be eliminated.

The Central Pennsylvania Poison Center offers the following guidelines to help you poison proof your home.

- All hazardous household products should be kept in original, labeled containers; locked and out of sight of young children.
- Use only medications with child-resistant caps and use them correctly.
- Destroy old medicines by pouring them down the drain or toilet, and rinse the container before discarding it.
- Keep Ipecac syrup on hand to use only with the director's directions. Check its expiration date.
- Teach Mr Yuk means NO, Don't Touch, and Stay Away! Any substance, solid, liquid, or spray can be a poison.
- Place a Mr. Yuk sticker on your telephone with the Central PA Poison Control Center's telephone number, 1-800-521-6110, in case of a poison emergency.
- Avoid taking medicine in front of a child. Many children frequently attempt to imitate adult behavior and don't understand the risk of certain medication to young bodies.
- Refer to medicine by proper names, never calling medicine candy.

Look at your home from your child's point of view. Help your child to identify things inside and outside the home that can be potentially harmful if misused. Before you call the Poison Control Center gather the facts: age and weight of the child, name of the poison product. Try to determine the amount of the product ingested, and how much time has elapsed since the poisoning. Report all symptoms observed. Call the Pennsylvania Poison Control Center and give your name and phone number in case your call is interrupted. Follow their directions carefully.

Your efforts to poison proof your home could save a life. For additional information or emergency poisoning assistance, contact the Central PA Poison Center at 1-800-521-6110. For Mr. Yuk stickers, send a stamped, self-addressed envelop to the Central PA Poison Center, M.C. H043, P.O. Box 850, Hershey, PA 17033.

Consumers Can Sniff Out Odor-Absorbing Produce

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Ever crunched a carrot or munched an apple that tasted slightly different than normal? Chances are your taste buds raised a big stink about odors absorbed from other foods stored in close proximity.

Many fruits and vegetables tend to cause off-flavors and aromas in meat, dairy products, and other fruits and vegetables, said Peter Ferretti, professor of vegetable crops in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"The closer and more enclosed the fresh produce is, the more chance for odors to intermix," Ferretti said. "In an enclosed area like a refrigerator, odors can really be a problem. Consumers shouldn't experience startling taste changes three or four days after purchase, but beyond that you might have problems with off tastes."

Kathleen Brown, associate professor of post-harvest physiology at Penn State, suggests consumers try to rotate their produce purchases, using the oldest fruits and vegetables first so food items are not stored longer than a week to 10 days.

Ferretti also warns that odors are more likely to be absorbed at higher temperatures, which means consumers should not intermingle refrigerated fruits and vegetables with produce that is commonly stores at or slightly below room temperature, such as apples and onions.

Ferretti says that not every consumer will notice a difference in taste. "Taste is a genetic trait," he said. "Some people can sharply define tastes, and others have more bland taste ranges. Our sense of smell works in tandem with our taste buds, so an off-odor can affect how an apple tastes, even if the odor has not truly penetrated the skin."

Ferretti and Brown list some popular fruits and vegetables whose odors penetrate other foods.

- Apples. Apple odor is absorbed by cabbage, carrots, figs, onions, meat, eggs and dairy products. "Many consumers store apples in the refrigerator to keep them crisp, but in that space their odor may cause problems," Brown said.
- Carrots. Celery can absorb the odor of carrots. "It gives celery sort of an earthy taste," Ferretti said.
- Onions (large bulb types) and garlic. Aromas from bulb onions affect apples, celery, potatoes and pears.
- Green bunching or scallion onions. Odors from these onions affect corn, figs, greens and mushrooms. "Scallion odor will noticeably affect flavor," Ferretti said.
- Pears. Pear odor is absorbed by cabbage, carrots, celery, onions and potatoes.
- Potatoes. Aromas from potatoes affect apples and pears. "Potatoes are almost always stored separately from other produce, so odor usually isn't a big problem," Ferretti said.
- Green Peppers. Green pepper odor will be absorbed by many botanical fruits, including pineapples. "Ripened green peppers, which usually are red, orange or yellow, do not have a strong aroma," Ferretti said.
- Citrus fruit. Citrus odor is absorbed by meat, eggs and dairy products.
- Grapes. Most commercial grapes are treated with sulfur dioxide for disease and insect control, giving the fruit a sulfurous aroma. "Produce experts say don't wash most fruits before refrigerating them, but grapes are the exception," Ferretti said. "By washing grapes thoroughly, the sulfur residue and smell will wash off, and grape skins protect against most injury during washing. Also, people tend to snack on grapes, eating three or four at a time. They aren't as likely to wash a small number of grapes, so it's better to wash them before refrigeration."

Brown suggests separating produce into individual bags, or using one crisper drawer only for fruits and the other for vegetables. Bagged or wrapped produce is less likely to absorb or emit odors.

If a piece of produce has been stored long enough to absorb odors, Ferretti recommends using the fruit or vegetable in a soup, stew or casserole where the flavors and aromas will intermingle.

Ferretti said consumers can counteract some of the odor absorption by placing a box of baking soda in the refrigerator, pantry or crisper drawer. "Baking soda also absorbs moisture," he said. "Baking soda can last quite a while, because only the top layer absorbs most of the odor and moisture, so homeowners can shake the top layer into the waste can and renew the treatment."

Too Wet? Plant A Groundcover

This is the second article in a monthly series on managing nutrients in the garden. Soil erosion contributes to decreased plant growth. Soil erosion results from storm run-off from unprotected garden areas and landscape beds. Herbaceous perennials, groundcovers and turf reduce soil erosion.

Soil sediment constitutes the largest volume of contaminant carried by run-off. Phosphate and pesticides pollutants often attach to soil particles in run-off water. Therefore, controlling erosion makes a significant contribution to the control of water pollution.

The erosion process is initiated when the impact of falling raindrops or irrigation water detaches soil particles. When there is too much water to soak into the soil, it fills surface depressions and begins to flow. With sufficient velocity, this shallow surface run-off carries away the detached soil particles.

Look for these signs of erosion in the garden. Tree roots, small stones or rocks become exposed. Small rills or gullies begin to grow. A build-up of silt may occur in certain low areas of a yard or garden. Also, loose soil splashes on windows and outside the walls of your home.

Use groundcovers, organic mulches or cover crops to reduce the quantity and velocity of run-off water through your yard. Groundcovers include any plants that cover exposed soil. A thick lawn acts as an ideal groundcover. The fibrous roots of turf grasses firmly hold soil in place. Herbaceous perennial plants and low shrubs also work well as groundcovers in landscape beds.

Groundcovers conserve soil moisture and lower soil temperatures during periods of extreme heat and utilize nutrients in the soil for plant growth. Groundcovers also reduce lawn maintenance and fill narrow, odd shaped planting beds where mowing and edging might be difficult.

Lastly, groundcovers create more interesting landscapes by providing variations in height, texture, and color.

Groundcovers require extra maintenance during the first three years. Once established, use organic mulch to control weeds. Fertilize to encourage vigorous growth all season. Irrigate groundcovers in times of drought and provide disease and pest control when needed.

Newly cut banks and any slopes greater than 12 percent are best planted with groundcovers rather than sod to reduce maintenance. Around buildings, groundcovers are superior to paving or structural controls for reducing heat, glare, noise and dust.

Enhance your lawn health: Bagging grass clippings and throwing them out with the trash robs your lawn of valuable nutrients. grass clippings from a properly mowed lawn are a fertilizer resource. Left on the lawn after mowing, the clippings reduce the amount of fertilizer needed for a healthy lawn and reduce the potential for fertilizer to move into the water system. Leaving grass clippings on the lawn also saves you local government the cost of disposing of them at area landfills During peak growing periods, usually in April or May, it may be necessary to collect grass clippings. If you must gather up the clippings, add them to your yard's compost pile for later use as mulch.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717)840-7408.

From Farrow To Finish

POWNAL, Vt. — Which of the following statements is true:

- Hogs are dirty
- Hogs are vicious and treacherous
- Hogs are gluttons

Answer: All of the above are false! In his new book A Guide to Raising Pigs, Kelly Klober debunks these myths and many others, explaining in clear, lively language how to raise swine successfully for profit, showing, or consumption.

In America today, pork production is a popular industry, from large- to small-scale farms, and pork has quickly become recognized as a high-protein, lean meat ever popular on the family table. According to Klober, the pork produced today is as much as 30 percent leaner than the pork of the '50s: "Through selective breeding, better management, and improved feeding practices, modern pork has become a source of high-quality protein and such valuable nutrients as iron and zinc, with a fat content comparable to chicken in the same-size serving portions."

Although the Midwest is the area most known for pig raising, hog farms are found from coast to coast, from Maine to Washington. A Guide to Raising Pigs reaches out to all farms, offering clear, illustrated information about every aspect of pig raising, including choosing the best breed for a farm, feeding and housing, keeping swine healthy and disease-free, butchering and pork processing, showing, and raising pigs as a business.

The introduction thoroughly covers the history of the pig, from the Eurasian wild boar to today's domestic barnyard livestock, giving the reader a rich background on where today's numerous cross-breeds originated.

Klober writes, "Of all the major livestock species, none is more misunderstood or less appreciated than the hog. The rooting, squealing, twisted-tailed mortgage lifter of the Midwest is actually known and valued far beyond the Corn Belt and the rim of the breakfast plate."

Klober's honest love for hog-raising is truly apparent in his writing and dispels all myths about hogs. In addition, Klober offers readers insight into pigs as an American tradition, from pig lingo to pork recipes to showing market hogs.

A Guide to Raising Pigs joins A Guide to Raising Chickens and A Guide to Raising Llamas as the third title in Storey's Animal Handbook series. It is available wherever quality books are sold for $18.95 each (or $22.40 postage paid, by calling 800-441-5700, Dept. YP or visiting www.storey.com.)

Kelly Klober is a farmer, writer, and 4-H Club leader who has raised purebred Duroc hogs for nearly 30 years. He and his wife, Phyllis, live and work on their farm in Silex, Missouri.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

The other week we attended our grandson's "Project Fair" at his elementary school. The children had weeks and weeks to prepare something to show.

The displays were quite varied. Some children showed cats, dogs, turtles, and snakes. Some grew plants under different conditions to show how they prospered. There were artificial volcanoes, a log cabin, historical costumes, and dinosaurs.

On a rainy night, we walked into the brightly-lit school filled with energetic children running everywhere. They presented a talent show in the auditorium which everyone enjoyed. It was an opportunity for several generations to interact and see what interests today's youth.

I'm sure that parents had a big hand in the projects even as we did years ago. Our six children were all very active in 4-H Clubs. The girls made suits and dresses. They also grew flowers and held cooking classes in my kitchen.

They were all in the dairy club and the community club. Their interests ranged from bees to geology and from veterinary science to raising pigs and vegetables.

The parents learned along with the children. Flowers must be picked the night before the show so that if some of them wilt they can be replaced. And, you do not allow beets to attain a nice size but rather pull them when they are small and tender. It is important that all vegetables be uniform.

One child even challenged the judge and whipped out a book to prove he had identified a stone correctly. It was a learning experience as, after all of their work, sometimes they got blue ribbons or rosettes and other times they got none.

You ask You answer

QUESTION — George Green, Pawling, N.J., would like to know where to find parts for the DeLaval Sterling milker.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for an electric butter churn.

QUESTION — Evan Weidman, 3418 Ritner Hwy., Newville, is looking for a cream separator, a large one with a 12 on it, made in New York, and sets in a large stand. He'd also like a booklet on the separator.

QUESTION — Mervin Strominger, Box 411, Campbelltown, PA 17010, is interested in finding a copy of a book titled "Tiger at the Bar," written by Chester Harris. He will pay for the price of the book plus postage.

QUESTION — Mrs. B. Stoltzfus would like to know if someone would sell her a 13x9-inch oblong cake pan in Tupperware that can be used in a baker. It is no longer made. She would be willing to pay a fair price if one is in a good condition. Contact her at 501 Furnace Rd., Quarryville, PA 17566.

QUESTION — Robert Rauhauser, Thomasville, is a researcher and historian and would like to know if some one might have some old round Hinkle's Easter dye bottles to complete a display of Egg Dyeing Apparatus. The dyes came six in a carton. He writes that the dyes were patented Aug. 24, 1943, which is amazing since raw materials and all efforts were going in to support the war effort. Rauhauser understands that the dyes were invented by a York County man from Wrightsville by the name of Raymond Young, who probably assigned his invention to the Hinkle Drug Store in Columbia. Hinkle's continue to sell egg dyes in square bottles, but Rauhauser wants the round bottles, the box they came in, and information on the inventor Young or the first Hinkle's Drug Store.

QUESTION — JoAnn Robbins would like to purchase "Nancy Drew" books circa 1930s, 1940s, and 1950s. Contact her at 1705 York Rd. Hartsville, PA 18974.

QUESTION — Robert Folk of Stewartsville, would like to buy mushroom popcorn seed. He saw it at the state Farm Show caramel corn booth. He has raised popcorn for years but can no longer find the original seed that he used. The closest thing that compares with it is the mushroom popcorn variety that he understands is from some place in Mount Joy.

QUESTION — Mrs. Allen Schultz, Honesdale, would like to know where to purchase the old type clothespin that has a wire reinforcement around the middle. She used them to make clothes pin dolls and needs more.

QUESTION — Mrs. Amos Hoover, Denver, wants to know who to contact about recycling plastic milk jugs into a picnic table.

QUESTION — M. Jozarik, Columbia, N.J., would like the address of the dealer or manufacturer of Hardy Outdoor Furnaces, which are made of stainless steel.

What Dairymen Are Saying About Vitamix And Formula M

I'm writing this letter in regards to your products Formula M and Vitamix. Having had breeding problems for years, my feed rep suggested trying Formula M. He knew of other dairymen using it, so I tried it. I'm quite impressed. Our herd had a record of less than one third conception rate on first services with a lot of second and thirds. Now with the Formula M, it's just the reverse, a few second and no thirds. It's a good feeling knowing my cows are bred back on schedule. Farming is a tough business these days, Formula M and Vitamix can help.

Harris Family Farm - Susquehanna, PA.

(Paul Bender uses Formula M) Recently we had a regular herd check, where we pregnancy checked 17 cows out of which 17 were pregnant. This is the best record we have ever had, and better than I thought it would ever be. I have also been using Vitamix with real good results. I feel Formula M and Vitamix are Great Products!

Paul Bender - Oakland, MD.

One cow was very ill and was ready to fall over any second, but I gave Vitamix and the next day she was 100% better. It was like she was born again. I am very pleased with Vitamix and would recommend it to anyone.

Lew Cortright Dairy - Hamlin, PA.

From our 55 cow herd many of our newborn calves died from scours. Being persuaded by my sons to try Vitamix, I ordered a gallon. We had instantly fed it to two calves that were listless, had scours or weren't aggressive drinking. I was impressed! Usually in one or two days the calf was back to normal instead of dead. With approximately 30 calves since we're using Vitamix none have died and they're back to normal, we are again selling the bulls. This alone pays for the Vitamix. I'm totally convinced!

Kenneth & Susan Steiner - Thorp, WI.

My experience with Formula M has been very exciting. My cows now clean on time and show heat shortly after calving. They have better heats and they are on time.

Tom Breeggeman - Eau Claire, WI.

I am writing to let you know we are extremely pleased with the results we have obtained since using the Formula M. Our somatic cell count has dropped and also the cows have much better appetites. We have been using it for two months now and our last herd check most of the cows were pregnant. We also see a big difference in the amount of milk cows give, as much as 3-5 pounds a day. We would recommend it to any dairymen we know.

Frank Hummel - Duncannon, PA.

I'm writing to express my satisfaction with Formula M. After the first three days of use, the cows were more lively and active outside. After just six to eight days, two of the cows came into heat that hadn't come in heat for eight months. After the thirteenth day, eleven cows came in heat - two being fresh only 29 and 30 days. I am thrilled with the results and will continue using Formula M in the future.

David Hazekamp - Goshen, NY.

We are having less repeats and shorter open days for our older cows that are milking heavily. I can't say enough good for Formula M - you have to try it to believe it! It's paying for itself and then some!

Catlin Farms - Ticonderoge, NY.

My husband was a skeptic! When I read him your advertisement he just smiled that smile. We had high somatic cell and breeding problems so we had a good sample herd. One week after receiving our Formula M, a DHIA test revealed that overall, our cell count had decreased dramatically. We bred a cull cow for the heck of it and guess what? She is due in May. Our calves receive Vitamix daily and are thriving. Guess who said we should order "more of that stuff", so I did. Thank you Frank Lampley.

Barb Echtner - Middleburgh, NY.

We have used Vitamix and Formula M since Sept. 1997, we have lost minimal amount of milk to mastitis. We have not had to have a Vet in for illness since Sept. 1997, a savings of about $150 - $200 a month. We have not used any antibiotic since then and hope to never use them again. We have given your pamphlets to every Dairymen we know we tell everyone about your product.

James L. Good - Clarksburg, PA.

I am writing to let you know how thoroughly satisfied I am with the Formula M. My herd has a much better appetite, they are gaining in production and have a higher energy level. I can't tell you how glad I am I tried your Formula M and I know I will continue to use it for a long time.

Edward Cushing - Willsboro, NY.

Thank you for making Formula M and Vitamix available to me. They truly are the greatest products I have ever used.

Dennis Reimer - Coaldale, CA.

Vitamix and Formula M are not intended to cure, treat, diagnose or mitigate. Vitamix and Formula M feed the body and the body heals itself.

Local Angus Breeder Recognized For Owning Bulls

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Fred Frey & Sons, Quarryville, Pa., owns two bulls listed in the 1998 Spring Sire Evaluation Report published by the American Angus Association which is headquartered in St. Joseph, Mo. Issued in both the spring and fall, the new report features the latest performance information available on more than 4,800 sires.

"The American Angus Association has the most complete and comprehensive beef cattle database in the world," said John Crouch, American Angus Association director of performance programs. "Of the sires listed in the main report, 51 percent have expected progeny differences (EPDs) for carcass traits, which should assist cattlemen in choosing genetics that will produce a more consistent, higher quality beef product."

EPDs are generated from performance data submitted by breeders through the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program.

Traits in which EPDs are available include birth weight, weaning weight, milk, yearling weight and height, mature daughter weight and height, and scrotal circumference, as well as carcass traits including carcass weight, marbling, rib eye area, external fat thickness and percent retail product. The analysis for the sire evaluation report is done in cooperation with Iowa State University.

Mitchell Joins Membership Of American Angus Association

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Jeffrey Mitchell, Reinholds, Pa. is a new member of the American Angus Association, reported Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization with headquarters in St. Joseph, Mo.

The American Angus Association, with more than 31,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on more than 12 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand. Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure. The result: unnecessary and expensive downtime.

Now there's a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts. It's the revolutionary new Super II™ v-belt from Dayco. The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications. And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts.

In heavy torque, high horse power and extreme shock load comparisons, it's not even a contest. The Super II v-belt is stronger, more flexible, and lasts far longer.

Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina

The secret to the Super II v-belt's durability is its unique construction. The central position of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength, balance and longer life. Multiple fabric plies, top and bottom, enhance flexibility. And Dayco's unique raw edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage.

These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way.

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive

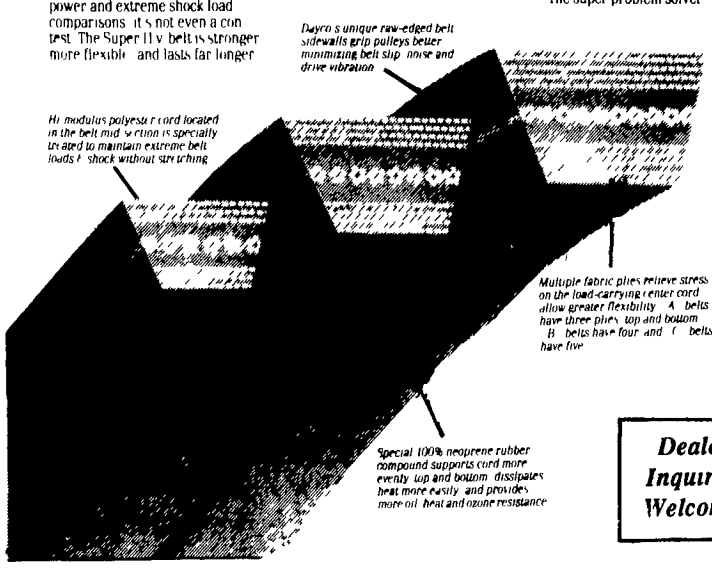
The Super II v-belt was field tested for two years on the most severe applications: rock quarry shaker screens, lumber mill tree debarkers, and pipe descalers. In every case, it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin. But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment.

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem. You'll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives. In fact, we're so sure you'll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that, in the unlikely event you're not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt.

The Super II v-belt from Dayco. The super problem solver.



Dayco's unique raw-edged belt sidewalls grip pulleys better minimizing belt slip, noise and drive vibration
Hi-modulus polyester cord located in the belt mid-section is specially treated to maintain extreme belt loads & shock without stretching Multiple fabric plies relieve stress on the load-carrying center cord allow greater flexibility. A belts have three plies, top and bottom. B belts have four, and C belts have five
Special 100% neoprene rubber compound supports cord more evenly, top and bottom, dissipates heat more easily, and provides more oil, heat and ozone resistance

PDA Meat Evaluation Center Accepts Performance Testing Applications

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center is accepting applications for Pennsylvania's performance testing programs for rams and boars.

At this writing, there are only a few pens still available for the Boar Testing Program. The nomination period continues for several more weeks for the Ram Performance Testing Program. We will accept both fall born ram lambs between Sept. 1, 1997 and Dec. 31, 1997, and spring born ram lambs born in January and February of 1998.

The rams nominated will be delivered April 7, 1998. They will then be given a 7-day adjustment period. On April 14, 1998, the rams will be weighed on test. The rams will be weighed every 14 days and progress reports will be sent out to owners and requesting, interested parties. The 84-day test will conclude July 7 and the rams will have their average daily gain, lifetime weight per day of age, and respective ratios calculated. The rams will be shorn, scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and loin-eye area, and undergo breed character and structural evaluations. The rams will have a breeding soundness exam which will include a comprehensive semen evaluation on the fall-born rams.

After all of the objective evaluations, approximately 75 percent of the rams are selected to be offered in Pennsylvania's Performance Tested Ram Sale. This year's Pennsylvania's 20th Annual Performance Tested Ram Sale is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 1, 1998. The ram sale will be held in conjunction with an invitational ewe sale and the Pennsylvania Sheep Producers Field Day at Penn State's Ag Arena.

Pennsylvania's 23rd Performance Tested Boar Sale is slated Wednesday evening, Aug. 19. This is scheduled to coincide with Penn State's Ag Progress Days.

For more information on Pennsylvania's performance testing programs or to nominate rams or boars, contact Glenn Eberly, Director, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Rd., State College, PA 16803. Phone (814) 238-2527 or (814) 865-5857 to leave a message or send a fax.

IPM Awards Given At NYS Vegetable Conference

LIVERPOOL, N.Y. — Three awards for outstanding work in integrated pest management were presented at the 1998 NYS Vegetable Conference.

The winners — growers Tim and Colleen Stanton, private consultant Richard Wildman, and vegetable IPM coordinator Curtis Petzoldt — have been establishing innovative IPM practices for the Northeast since the 1980s.

Half a dozen NYS IPM awards are presented each year to individuals or groups showing leadership in minimizing economic, health, and environmental risks. According to IPM Program director James Tette, the purpose of the award is to "honor people for developing new IPM methods or for sharing IPM with others."

The Stantons practice IPM on a family farm in Feura Bush, N.Y., that they have owned together for 11 years. They devote nearly 400 acres to production of hay and other field crops, small fruits, vegetables, and greenhouse plants.

Tim Stanton, who is in charge of most of the daily farm operations, uses rotation, resistant varieties, pest traps, conservation tillage, and a host of other IPM methods. He is willing to try new ideas and cooperates regularly with extension faculty and staff affiliated with Cornell University. In recent years he has helped to develop the use of rye mulch for pumpkin production, tested powdery mildew-resistant pumpkins, participated in pumpkin variety trials, and hosted informational twilight meetings for growers. He has also conducted trials for reducing bird damage on sweet corn and has evaluated biological controls to combat sweet corn insects.

Colleen Stanton and her sister operate a seasonal farm stand, "Our Family's Harvest," in New Scotland, N.Y. This retail store is supplied with produce that is wholesaled from Stanton's Feura Farm, and Colleen speaks regularly with customers about how the food is grown. "I don't know how anybody couldn't get in to IPM these days," said Colleen. "If you're not using IPM, you're probably throwing money away." Colleen regularly monitors with sticky cards in their two greenhouses.

Richard Wildman, president of Agricultural Consulting Services, Inc., might be considered a modern pioneer in the fiel of IPM. His business, begun in 1983, was one of the earliest private crop-consulting firms in the state. Today, Wildman's full-time staff of 10 swells during the growing season, when they offer production advice on some 70,000 acres of vegetables and field crops.

Agricultural Consulting Services, Inc. serves growers in New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts. According to Curt Petzoldt, assistant director of the NYS IPM Program, Wildman's firm has helped growers of processing sweet-corn reduce numbers of pesticide applications by up to 50 percent in New York. Wildman's work with tomato processors has also resulted in substantial savings in pesticide use, both economically and environmentally.

Wildman originated the concept of fully integrated crop production, which embraces nutrient management planning and soil resources in a "whole farm" approach. He has also developed on-farm crop management software that helps growers with record keeping and other tasks. Wildman says one of his greatest contributions has been "bringing IPM into a format that's readily and intensively adopted by growers."

To improve scouting techniques on snap beans, cabbage, and other vegetables, Wildman shares his knowledge with Extension faculty and staff at Cornell University. He also serves on the IPM Commodity Working Group for Vegetables, where he evaluates IPM research and implementation proposals.

Wildman studied horticultural science at Colorado State University, graduating with a bachelor's degree in 1979. He is on the executive boards of the National Alliance of Independent Crop Consultants and the Professional Agricultural Consultants of New York State.

Curtis Petzoldt, assistant director of the NYS IPM Program and vegetable IPM coordinator for the state, is rarely content with the status quo. With one foot in a cabbage field and the other in the future, he encourages practices that change the ways farmers and consumers do business.

In 1996, Petzoldt and area IPM educator Timothy Weigle founded the Northeast Weather Association — a nonprofit membership organization that provides growers with timely weather data and pest forecasts. The specific information helps producers determine when diseases and insects need to be controlled, and whether sprays can be delayed or eliminated. Said Petzoldt, "Membership in the Northeast Weather Association grew 56 percent between the first and second year. In the coming year, we will offer weather-based pest and crop models for producers of ornamentals and field crops."

In 1997, Petzoldt and his colleagues sought to manage European corn borer on fresh-market sweet corn by releasing microscopic beneficial wasps and applying Bt (a biological insecticide). With these practices, they averted up to three applications of chemical pesticides and achieved marketable quality corn. This research is part of a multi-year interdisciplinary project comparing four vegetable growing systems (conventional, IPM present, IPM future, and organic) to assess which practices can be incorporated into present and future cropping systems. Anthony Shelton, associate director of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, says "Petzoldt has doggedly pursued the development of IPM for vegetables and other crops. He is widely respected by those who work with him, not only in New York, but also nationally."

In 1998, Petzoldt will take part in national meetings that focus not only on IPM labeling of foods, but how labeling could cross state-lines. The New York State IPM Program, with Petzoldt at the helm, has responded to private sector demands for IPM-grown products for several years. Wegmans Food Markets, for example, now carries nearly 14 kinds of vegetables with the NYS IPM label. Petzoldt has worked for more than a decade with growers, private consultants, and private industry to develop IPM guidelines, enabling crops to be grown in ways that are economically and environmentally sound.

Prior to joining the IPM Program in 1985, Petzoldt was a representative for Lilly Research Laboratories and Elanco Products. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate in plant pathology from the University of California (Davis) and a bachelor's degree in biology from Bates College.

Brillion

PULVERIZERS

Brillion Pulverizers provide the ideal seedbed by crushing clods, eliminating air pockets and firming the soil for better soil-seed contact. This allows moisture to be drawn into the plant by capillary action. The loose surface mulch retards evaporation and conserves moisture.

Brillion offers more than 92 combinations of widths and roller-wheel designs, making it the leader in pulverizer sales.

Brillion Pulverizers are available in widths from 6' up to 46' to accommodate any size operation. Brillion X-fold Pulverizers (pictured below) range in size from 19' to 46'.

KRAUSE CONSERVATION TILLAGE

FINISH TILLAGE SYSTEMS

ONE PASS Tillage is REALITY

6150 XT LANDSMAN

Combines Primary & Secondary Tillage with Seedbed Finishing

6300 LANDSTAR

Heavy Residue does not stop this Machine

Both Machines feature Krause's "2-Piece K-tine" - 180 pound point load - and/or the XT270 Shank - 270 pound point load - in combinations that till, and level the soil so that you are ready to plant after one pass. The LANDSTAR is designed to handle heavy crop residue without disking or shredding first. The trash moves on through. The secret to the finished seedbed is on the back - combination of rolling baskets and heavy-duty 16" spring tines level the ground and incorporate any trash that's present.

High-Residue FIELD CULTIVATORS

KRAUSE invented HEAVY-DUTY

2-Piece K-Tine provide superior 25" clearance for trash flow.

Self-leveling tongue automatically levels the unit when changing depth.

5 Rows of Shanks - 125" front to back.

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve, Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms - Lowville, NY

Mr. Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994.

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president.

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit. They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration."

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs., and they have a higher protein test as well. They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head. They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor

PICK CORN AND CHOP STALKS

At the Same Time with the Geringhoff Rota Disc Head

The revolutionary head saves you time and money by eliminating your stalk chopper.

Here's how it works ....

The Rota Disc technique allows the corn head to draw the corn plant in quickly through the stripping system not only striping the plant but cutting the stalk into small pieces and delivering it to the bottom of the row.

Fits all brand combines up to 12 row sizes!

PICK CORN AND CHOP STALKS

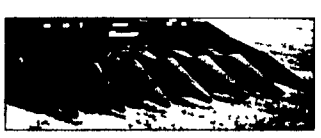
At the Same Time with the Geringhoff Rota Disc Head



The revolutionary head saves you time and money by eliminating your stalk chopper

Here's how it works...

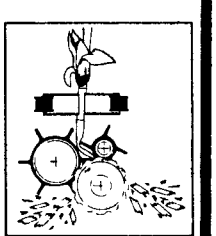
The Rota Disc technique allows the corn head to draw the corn plant in quickly through the stripping system not only stripping the plant but cutting the stalk into small pieces and delivering it to the bottom of the row.



Visit our web site at http://www.geringhoff-us.com

Fits all brand combines up to 12 row sizes!

Naylor Receives Jurchak Extension Award

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — The second annual Thomas B. Jurchak Extension Award was recently presented to Audrey Naylor of Factoryville at the annual meeting of the Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension Association.

The Jurchak Award is given annually to a person who has made significant contributions to Penn State Cooperative Extension of Lackawanna County.

As the award recipient, Naylor received a cash prize and commemorative plaque in recognition for her service.

Audrey Naylor began her association with cooperative extension more than 30 years ago as a 4-H leader of the Fleetville Community 4-H Club. As a leader, she shared her skills with youth teaching them cooking sewing, and other life skills.

Because of Naylor's encouragement and leadership, many members in her club were actively involved in the county program, attending local, regional, and state 4-H events. As a result of her efforts, her members not only excelled in their 4-H projects, but also in leadership roles and activities.

Naylor lent her leadership skills honed as a 4-H leader to the extension program by serving on the cooperative extension board since 1968. She quickly assumed leadership responsibilities by serving as secretary of the board from 1969-1971. In 1977, she served as treasurer, then stepped into the president's role in 1978, serving for six years.

Naylor has also served on the family living extension advisory board for the past 10 years. She served as chair of that committee from 1987-1994. As a member of the committee, Naylor has provided input for the extension family living programs, as well as helping to plan and conoduct the annual Spring Fling.

The Jurchak Extension Award was established in honor of Thomas B. Jurchak, retired Lackawanna County Cooperative Extension director and agricultural agent. Jurchak made outstanding contributions to Lackawanna County's agriculture, particularly green-wrap tomatoes and milk marketing. During his 38-year career, he worked closely with producers to incorporate findings from research into practice.

Cover Crops Conference Set For Maryland Ag Leaders

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Cover crops during the winter months seem like a great idea for keeping farmland nutrients from leaching into the Chesapeake Bay. So why have agricultural producers been slow to adopt their use as recommended in Maryland's tributary team plans?

Recent scientific research and field experience address many of the previous cover crop limitations. So the University of Maryland's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources has scheduled a two-day Cover Crops Conference to share these findings with agricultural, natural resource and environmental professionals. The conference also will be of interest to public officials, farm and environmental groups, and farmers themselves.

The two-day event is scheduled March 18 and 19 in the Tidewater Inn at Easton. Support is being provided by the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service, with supplementary financial support from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program.

Registration information is available from county offices of the university's Cooperative Extension Service throughout Maryland. Or call Barbara South at the university's Wye Research and Education Center near Queenstown; phone: (410) 827-6202. The registration deadline has been extended to March 11.

A $50 registration fee includes lunch on the first day and breakfast on the second day, plus morning coffee breaks and bus transportation for a field trip. The late and on-site registration fee is $70.

Activities on the first day get under way at 9 a.m. with check-in and a morning coffee hour. Program sessions will begin at 10 a.m. The afternoon agenda will include a field trip to the Wye Research and Education Center to observe various species of cover crops with two planting dates and learn about ongoing cover crop research and demonstrations.

The second day begins with breakfast at 8 a.m. Program sessions will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Topics will include soil quality, cropping systems, pest interactions, alternative cover crop species and farm management economics.

Here is the full schedule of topics and speakers:

250 Attend Winter Training Day

SOUDERTON (Montgomery Co.) — For turf and lawn care professionals, the winter months are a time for preparation and learning. For seven years, Moyer & Son has been offering regional lawn, tree, and turf care companies the opportunity to enhance their employee's knowledge, learn safe practices, and accumulate Pennsylvania applicator credits during their semi-annual training.

Recently, more than 200 lawn, tree, and turf care professionals from the five-county area gathered at the Indian Valley Senior Adult Activities Center on Second Street in Souderton for Moyer & Son's Winter Training Day. Speakers conducting seminars included Ken Fick of Green Giant Lawn Care; Buddy Clowney, Richard Shearman, and Robert Williamson of Moyer Home Services; Phillip Staudt of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture; and Nancy Bosold of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Extension Service.

There were six seminars in all with a catered lunch provided by Moyer & Son at midday. Highlights of the day included the Sprayer Calibration Clinic at 1 p.m. and the spill control demonstration at 1:45 p.m. The Sprayer Calibration Clinic demonstrated how to properly calibrate application systems for increased environmental responsibility and application effectiveness. Attendees were invited to reserve a time to bring their sprayer equipment to the Moyer & Son facility at Reliance Road in Souderton for proper calibration. The spill control demonstration taught valuable techniques for effectively cleaning up an accidental spill of lawn, tree, or turf treatment products. State applicator credits were assigned at day's end for those who successfully completed the day's seminars.

W-L HQ Alfalfa Takes Top Honors

EVANSVILLE, Wis. — W-L Research has announced that W-L alfalfa varieties have once again taken top honors, including the world's grand champion award, at the 1997 World's Forage Superbowl.

The Forage Superbowl is part of the World Dairy Expo, held Oct. 1-5 in Madison, Wis.

This year's victory represents the second time in the last three years that a W-L variety has won the world's grand champion award.

Joshua Kamps of Darlington, Wis. captured the 1997 Grand Champion Award with an entry of WL 322 HQ that came in with crude protein of 24.3 percent and a relative feed value of 208.

With only 12 percent of the total entries in this year's contest, W-L alfalfa varieties showed their true colors by capturing wins in three of the five major Forage Superbowl categories, including world's grand champion (Joshua Kamps), commercial hay champion (Charles Miehe, Belmont, Wis.), and commercial baleage grand champion (Wade Wendhausen of Livingston, Wis.). To cap off W-L's strong showing at this year's Forage Superbowl, Ken Jeanquart of Casco, Wis. took grand champion, first-time entrant in the dairy haylage division.

Pa. Beef Expo March 26-29

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 1998 Pennsylvania Beef Expo will be held March 26-29 here at the Penn State's Agricultural Arena.

The Expo allows beef producers and other interested consumers to see the latest technology, marketing strategies, and services within the beef industry. Attractions at the event include an all-breed, performance-tested bull sale, cattle evaluations and sales, a trade show featuring more than 60 commercial exhibitors, and an educational program.

This year's educational segment is a comprehensive traveling exhibit on beef cattle management with particular emphasis on quality assurance concepts. The program, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Beef Council, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, and the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, will be held Thursday, March 26 at 2 p.m. and continue through Saturday at various times.

The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association Award Banquet and Membership Meeting will be held at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Boalsburg Fire Hall.

The trade show opens at 8 a.m. Friday, March 27, and the 25th annual all-breed, performance-tested bull sale begins at 11 a.m. More than 70 bulls from such breeds as Angus, Polled Hereford, Simmental, Charolais, and Limousin will be offered. The bull sale will be immediately followed by the Pennsylvania Simmental Sale.

On Saturday, March 28, a youth competition called the Junior Skill-A-Thon will begin at 8:30 a.m. The commercial heifer sale is scheduled for 10 a.m., followed by the special purebred breeding cattle sale. The commercial and special breeds sales will be followed by the Pennsylvania Angus sale at 1 p.m.

Saturday evening, the Junior Quiz Bowl begins at 6 p.m., followed by a junior pizza party, featuring music by DJ Phil Dempsey.

On Sunday, March 29, the Junior Heifer Show starts at 9 a.m., followed by the Junior Steer Show, scheduled for 10:30 a.m.

Geneva To Host First-Ever N.Y. Stone Fruit School March 16-17

GENEVA, N.Y. — Growers will have the opportunity to improve their knowledge and management skills for apricots, cherries, peaches, and plums at the first-ever New York Stone Fruit School scheduled for March 16 and 17 in Geneva, N.Y.

Stone fruit growers from New York and neighboring provinces and states are invited to attend.

"The theme of the conference is 'Strength through Diversity'," said organizer Robert L. Andersen, who is the stone fruit pomologist at Cornell University.

Andersen and others believe New York orcharists should consider their options to diversify operations by expanding their plantings of stone fruits. "We have new and improved varieties of stone fruits and have developed management techniques that improve quality and yield," said Andersen. "We would like to help growers develop other profit centers out of stone fruit, and spread their labor and equipment expenses over a longer harvest season. Consumer demand is there for fresh, u-pick, and processed fruit."

Sessions are being led by breeders, plant pathologists, and entomologists from the NYS Experiment Station, the Hudson Valley Lab, and other universities. Growers and industry leaders will also participate. Topics will include ground cover management, replant considerations, irrigation, higher density cherry orchards, copper and bacterial pest control, options for the NY sweet cherry orchards, apricot, cherry and plum varieties to consider, peach varieties and rootstocks, cankers and associated problems, nutritional requirements of stone fruits, brown rot, and stone fruit profit centers. Steve Hoying, leader of the Lake Ontario Fruit Team, also invites growers of new sweet cherry orchards to bring slides to show and tell.

Activities will begin with registration at noon on Monday, March 16, and run until late afternoon on Tuesday, March 17. An industry banquet will be held Monday night at which Susan Hosey, a New York consumer affairs food consultant, will speak on "Local Chains Really Do Want Your Stone Fruits."

The event is being sponsored by the York State Agricultural Experiment Station, the Statewide Fruit Program Committee, Cornell Cooperative Extension, and the NYS Horticultural Society.

The meetings will be held at the new Geneva Lakefront Ramada in Geneva, N.Y. Registration for the fruit school may be made by calling Andersen at (315) 787-2235. The price of $100 covers the cost of the sessions, banquet on Monday, lunch on Tuesday, breaks, and a school handbook. The deadline for registration is March 1.

Attendees are urged to make their own arrangements for overnight accommodations by calling the Ramada Inn directly at (315) 789-0400.

Conference Attracts 1,300

Blue ribbon winners for onions and potatoes in the annual Consumer Packaging Contest were also on display during the conference. Held since the 1950s and sponsored by the NYS Dept. of Agriculture & Markets, the NYS Vegetable Growers Assoc. and the Empire State Potato Club, this contest has always been of considerable interest. It helps growers assess quality at packing and wholesale levels as well as to reinforce awareness of U.S. standards. Random selections are made by qualified NYS inspectors throughout the state and the products are judged for grade defects, uniformity of size, general presentation and package markings. An additional exhibit of U.S. grading standards and specific crop information for growers to pick up was new to the exhibit this year.

The potato grand champions this year were P. Vigneri & Sons of Elba for western New York and Venco Produce Company of the Bronx for eastern New York. The onion grand champions were Jacobson Farms of Fulton for western New York and Modern Produce Farms of Florida for eastern New York.

The vegetable industry in New York state continues to be a strong 5th in the nation, contributing more than $280 million to New York's economy, including more than $173 million from fresh market vegetables, $37 million from processing, and $61 million from potatoes. The 10 top crops produced include fresh and kraut cabbage, fresh and processed sweet corn, processed snap beans and green peas, cucumbers, potatoes, onions, tomatoes, and lettuce.

Planning is already well under way for the 1999 NYS Vegetable Conference, traditionally held during the second week of February in the Syracuse area. Conference trade show exhibitor information will be available in mid-September, and with detailed program and registration information available in early December.

The published 210-page Proceedings from the conference that includes many of the talks given at the conference anda list of most of the speakers is available for $14 postpaid from the NYS Vegetable Growers Association.

For more information about this annual conference, the Proceedings or membership for commercial growers, contact the NYS Vegetable Growers Association at P.O. Box 4256, Ithaca, NY 14852, (607) 539-7648.

"ATTENTION DAIRYMEN"

Sprung Farms of Bergen, NY and J. Elvin Glick of Quarryville, PA have been supplying area dairymen with high quality forages for years, so we would like to introduce a new type of service, "Alfalfa Balage" "Alfalfa Balage" has been around for a time now and has proven to make a great source of feed providing that the farmer gets what he pays for To help resolve this problem we would like to introduce an "on your farm service" which would include fresh baled alfalfa in easy to use 4' or 5' round bales. 1. Delivered immediately after baling, unwrapped for total inspection of quality and pureness of product, 2. After total satisfaction has been determined, a wrapping service by one of our local area farmers would take place at any site desired by buyer, 3. We can also offer two kinds of wrapping service, either single bale, individually or tube type by state of the art new wrappers.

Because we are so sure that our product and service is second to none, we can also offer a term type payment schedule with no interest to help spread out puchase to help with cash flow If this offer interests you please call us to talk more about this and possibly we can arrange a personal meeting

We also still carry our full line of small square bales of hay

1. Alfalfa
2. Timothy/Alfalfa
3. Bedding
4. Western Hay

We also have single bale individually wrapped balage available Any size load is available
